Bracken Party In Lead As Manitoba Ballots Counted

Partial Returns From Yesterday's Polling Show Eighteen Liberal-Progressives Elected and Six Leading in Legislature of Fifty-five Seats; Seven Conservatives Elected, Three Social Crediters, One C.C.F. and L. St. G. Stubbs, Independent

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, July 28.—The Liberal-Progressive government of Premier John Bracken, which held thirty-six seats at dissolution of the last Manitoba Legislature, had elected eighteen members as provincial returns trickled in today and were leading in the race for six other seats of the fifty-three at stake in yesterday's polling.

With voting deferred until August 21 in The Pas, northern riding in which Mr. Bracken is candidate, and Rupert's Land, where Provincial Treasurer E. A. McPherson is candidate, it appeared possible this afternoon that, if voting should follow the present trend, the two government members would face electors in their own ridings with twenty-four elected supporters.

Tourist Gains Are Estimated

Industry Expected to Reach $17,000,000 in Province This Year

The tourist business will be worth about $17,000,000 to British Columbia this year, according to estimates of provincial authorities.

This represents roughly a 40 per cent increase over 1935.

The estimate is based on a large increase in inquiries at tourist bureaus, vastly larger records of visiting automobiles which are taken as the main indication, and the large number of visitors to Vancouver for the Jubilee celebrations.

All signs indicate that travel has reached the highest point of any previous year with the possible exception of 1929, tourist officials said today.

Canadian Veterans, in England After Events in France, Are Cheered in Streets of Metropolis

By THOMAS T. CHAMPTION
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 28.—Several thousand of Canada's pilgrims to Vimy Ridge were in London today after returning from the unveiling of the Canadian Memorial there Sunday and visits to former battlefields.

The legionnaires, many with their families, crossed the English Channel in five steamships and arrived here late last night and early today.

One thousand of the pilgrims landed at Folkestone and came by special train to Victoria Station, London, stopping mostly at hotels in the Bloomsbury district. Others who traveled across the channel in the Montrose, the Montcalm and the Ascania were landed at Tilbury and likewise distributed at various hotels.

Still others crossed in the Antonia from Le Havre to Southampton and arrived at Waterloo Station.

Gas Drops Two Cents a Gallon

Price Now at Twenty-three Cents at All Stations in Victoria

The price of gasoline dropped to 23 cents a gallon at all stations this morning.

This is 2 cents under the wholesale price of 25 cents a gallon, which has not changed despite the falling retail market. However, it is understood that operators of stations will receive a rebate.

The reason for the extra 2 cents drop in the price of gasoline to the consumer was not given, though the Texaco distributor intimated that the other companies were trying to squeeze them out.

"It's going to be a tough job," one of their men said, "we're a pretty big outfit."

Distributors of major gasoline companies said there had been no appreciable rise in the sale of their products, though Texaco reported a big jump.

More Dominion Defences Urged

Bruce, Australian Commissioner to Britain, Suggests Increased Measures

Canadian Press
Bristol, Eng., July 28.—Rt. Hon. Stanley M. Bruce, Australian High Commissioner to Great Britain and former Prime Minister of the Commonwealth, in a speech here today urged the Dominions make a large contribution towards the defence of the empire.

Speaking at the Royal Empire Society's summer school, Mr. Bruce said recent experiences had convinced the smaller nations they could not rely on the League of Nations for protection. As a result, they were feverishly arming.

"I believe we eventually shall build a state of world peace," said Mr. Bruce. "But meantime we must rely on the sister nations of the empire, of which all must play an equal part."

OUTLAYS COMPARED

The High Commissioner recalled that in 1935 Great Britain contributed £2 12s 6d per head for defence purposes. He said Australia's figure was £1 1s. New Zealand's £2s 6d. South Africa's £2s and Canada's 5s 7d.

Mr. Bruce continued: "If we claim, as we all claim, complete liberty and equality, we must shoulder our responsibilities. You can rely there will be recognition in Australia that they have got to make their contribution."

SOON TO LAY KEEL OF SISTER SHIP TO GIANT QUEEN MARY

British Commons Informed Government Has Agreed Company Shall Place Contract on the Clyde

Canadian Press
London, July 28.—W. S. Morrison, Financial Secretary to the Treasury, said today that a decision had been made concerning placing of a contract for a sister ship to the giant liner Queen Mary.

He said "yes" in reply to a question to that effect from Adam Maitland, Conservative.

Mr. Morrison said Chamberlain had received a specific proposal from the Cunard-White Star Company under the provisions of the North Atlantic Shipping Act for building a sister ship to the Queen Mary.

ON THE CLYDE
Mr. Morrison said the company had supplied Mr. Chamberlain with evidence which showed that technical and commercial considerations obliged it to place the contract with John Brown and Company Ltd. of Clydebank, Scotland, builders of the Queen Mary. Mr. Chamberlain had agreed to that course, the Financial Secretary said.

British Party Here in August

Inspectional Tour Arranged By B.C. House Due Here August 17

Due to arrive in British Columbia on August 2, the British inspectional tour party arranged by W. A. McAdam, acting agent-general for B.C. in London, is now on the Atlantic Ocean, according to word received by Premier Pattullo today.

The party, which numbers roughly fifty people, including a dozen representing big timber importing interests, has been arranged privately without expense to this province other than entertainment while the visitors are here.

They will come to Victoria August 17 for two days, and will visit Fairbridge Farm School at Duncan, and Butchart's Gardens. Probably a government reception will be arranged. They will return through B.C. by way of the Okanagan Valley.

The purpose of the tour is to give British business people a better idea of the possibilities of this province. In view of the great development in the lumber business British Columbia is now doing with Great Britain, the visit of the lumber group is of more than usual interest.

Those in the party include: Mrs. B. E. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bracken, Dr. Bertram Watson, Miss Brerley, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Brerley, Mr. and Mrs. L. Snape Brown, Miss Hyndman, Miss H. Hendaye (on the Franco-Spanish frontier), July 28.—Their grip on two fronts strengthened by sweeping victories in the Guadarrama Mountains and at Toledo, loyal government forces concentrated today on holding back rebel drives on Malaga, important Mediterranean base, and on San Sebastian, scene of new and bloody clashes.

On the rebels' siege of Malaga may depend the ultimate fate of the Madrid government. Malaga is a fuel supply base for the Spanish fleet.

If Gen. Francisco Franco, whose arrival on the mainland from Morocco was announced today, succeeds in landing more troops on the Spanish peninsula, the government's position may take a turn for the worse.

Aviation sources said the French prefect had advised the British consul he was keeping the planes at the Bordeaux airport "until their papers of identity have been verified."

Air authorities said the airlines were capable of transporting 3,000 men in one day by making thirty or forty trips across the fifteen-mile Moroccan passage.

BRITISH M.P.'S TO HOLIDAY

London, July 28 (Canadian Press Cable).—Parliament will recess October 29, after the adjournment scheduled for the end of this week. The session will be prorogued when the members reassemble and the new session will open November 3.

Intensified, terrible punishment from the air was ordered in a new attempt to sound the knell of Fascist revolt in outlying cities.

In the Guadarrama Mountains, however, government claims of successes contrasted with rebel announcements of the capture of a defended village and the prediction of the insurgent general, Emilio Mola, that his men would reach Madrid within three days.

COMMITTEE NAMED
A leftist committee in Madrid was named to take over "necessary" industry and the government continued widespread enlistment of both men and women, even mobilising several scores of bullfighters.

Sharp fighting was reported in the north, both in the vicinity of San Sebastian and at Oviedo, where loyal besiegers took positions overlooking the city and prepared for a new bombardment.

Canadian Press
Vancouver, July 28.—Vancouver Golden Jubilee celebration has to date resulted in increased business to the amount of $20,000,000, Mayor G. G. McGeer told the city council yesterday.
Merchants tell me they have not had a better month in ten years," the Mayor said. "The British Columbia Electric Railway Company has more men employed at this time than in any similar period in the history of its public services.
"I may add the railways, steamship and automobile companies are doing increased business and the volume of some merchants is 300 to 400 per cent higher already than they estimated."
The Mayor said the results had justified the expenditures of the Jubilee committee.
"Vancouver has been presented to the world as a summer tourist resort," he said.

STUDENTS AT OBSERVATORY

Summer Class Inspects Big Telescope; Peltier's Comet Observed

In a visit to the Dominion astronomical observatory at Little Seach Mountain yesterday evening, 125 students of the stars were shown Jupiter, the moon, the Peltier comet, and through the big telescope, the double star Albireo.
Members of the summer class of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, Victoria Centre, made the trip to the observatory at the special invitation of Dr. W. E. Harper, director.
The moon being too low in the sky to train the large reflecting telescope on it, as had been planned, the visitors, on their arrival in chartered buses and private cars, were told the principles and mechanism of the instrument, the third largest in the world.
Dr. Harper explained how the telescope was anchored on an axis parallel to the axis of rotation of the earth, so that once it had been pointed to a star, simple machinery enabled it to follow the star through the heavens as the earth turned, thus allowing lengthy observations or photographs to be made.
Victoria had been chosen for the site of the telescope, originally the world's largest, because of its low temperature range and perfect visibility, he said. A rapid or extreme change in temperature could throw the seventy-two inch mirror out of focus, the greatest irregularity in it being only one-quarter of a thousandth of an inch.
As the dome of the building swung around on its base and the telescope, the moving parts of which weigh forty-five tons, was directed on the star Albireo, some confusion was evident among the students. The 135-ton dome is mounted on wheels.

Dr. R. M. Petrie, directing observations, told the star-gazers that Albireo, also known as the star Beta of the constellation Cygnus, the SWAN, was not truly a double star, the brilliant blue part of it being much farther away and spinning on a different orbit to the smaller red star.
From Jupiter or some other planet the moon and the earth would appear as a true double star, revolving about a common orbit.
The blue part of Albireo, which to the naked eye appears to be a single star, was much hotter than the red part, Dr. Petrie said.
Through the small telescopes, in charge of Dr. A. McKellar and Robert Peters, the students saw shadows in craters on the moon and three of the satellites of Jupiter revolving around it.
SAW COMET
When it became sufficiently dark, the party moved outside to observe Peltier's comet, which is now plainly visible to the naked eye and growing brighter every day.
Twenty new transparent photographs shining from the observatory walls drew a great deal of attention. The transparencies showed such things as the moon's crust, spiral nebulae, the Milky Way and even a meteorite.
Dr. Harper and Dr. Petrie led the students in an inspection of the comprehensive library of the observatory. Dr. Petrie also explained how spectrum analysis work was carried out, demonstrating with microscope and slides.
Among the visitors were Dr. Fritz Newbauer, of the Lick observatory, California, and A. V. Goddard, member of the American Astronomical Association, from Portland, Oregon.
Lieutenant-Commander H. B. Tingley, president of the Victoria branch, expressed thanks on behalf of the class to Dr. Harper and the observatory staff.
The next meeting will be held at Victoria College next Monday evening, with Robert Peters talking on "Jupiter."
According to a Kansas statute, it is illegal to eat snakes in public.

Surprise in Manitoba

PREMIER BRACKEN AND HIS Liberal-Progressive government in the Manitoba general elections yesterday did not fare as well as had been predicted from Winnipeg. In the last House he had thirty-six supporters out of the total membership of fifty-five, and there were nine Conservatives, five Labor and two Independents. Latest returns today indicate that although Mr. Bracken with eighteen supporters elected and six others leading will have the largest following, he will no longer command an absolute majority of the House.

The Conservatives with seven elected and nine leading have made gains. But the surprise to outsiders is the appearance of Social Credit in Manitoba, with three members elected and one other leading. This comes at a time when many had thought that Social Credit was discredited and on its way out because of disappointments in Alberta. Now it must be asked whether Aberhartism may not be more toughly rooted on the prairies than was suspected. The C.C.F. will also appear in the new House with one to four members, and there is the probability that there will be one fully acknowledged Communist member.

Manitoba has never been particularly receptive to the radicalism of the more westerly parts of the prairies. The fact that such radicalism is now spreading eastward is an index of the political unsettlement of the great agricultural area between the Rockies and the Great Lakes.

Closer Ties

NEARER APPROACH OF BRITAIN and United States is seen as a by-product of the turbulent scene Europe is presenting politically. Mr. J. L. Garvin, in one of his Sunday editorials in The London Observer, points out that Britain must react swiftly and extensively. Her army, navy and air force need expansion and they need it at once. However, he says Britain is short of skilled labor in some trades and even shorter of certain specialized kinds of machinery. So, the necessary rebuilding cannot be done at home within the time available.

"The United States, whose potentiality of aircraft production is equal to that of all the rest of the world put together, could supply us with a thousand first-line planes, or more," Mr. Garvin writes, "with light auxiliary vessels and their armament as required by the navy under the new conditions; with much of the equipment for the regular army and the territorial; with the gauges and machine tools which home industry alone cannot supply in sufficient quantity at the necessary speed."

During the war the vast manufacturing resources of United States were called upon to supply the Allies. Mr. Garvin says these resources could be similarly tapped now if a settlement of the British war debt to United States were arranged. He urges such a settlement, the possibility of which has been hinted at in other quarters. It all points in the direction of stronger ties—commercial, at least—between Britain and United States in the face of a Europe going berserk.

Control Of Pneumonia

CANCER AND TUBERCULOSIS are being fought with the aid of special societies which aim to teach public and physicians the importance of recognizing the first symptoms and treating the ailments in their early stages. A similar society for the control of pneumonia is suggested by Dr. Thomas Ordway, dean of Albany Medical College. For prevention of pneumonia deaths, it is important to recognize symptoms early, to determine the type of pneumonia in its early stages, and to give serum early in appropriate cases. Dr. Ordway pointed out at the recent meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The lay public, and particularly employers of labor and other services, need to know the importance of early diagnosis and treatment of pneumonia and how such early attention may lessen the danger of death from pneumonia by preventing the spread of the disease through the lobes of the lungs. The old-time family doctor knew what he was doing when he "scolded and scared" his patient and thus made him avoid fatigue and exposure and induced him to remain in bed by dogmatically and emphatically declaring that he was "threatened" with pneumonia.

"It is unfortunate, even appalling," Dr. Ordway said, "that the medical profession as a whole has not grasped, or at least has not impressed on the lay public, their patients, the importance of such terms as bronchitis and pleurisy. When patients are given such an opinion neither the individual nor his family usually have any idea what the physical signs warranting this diagnosis may be and too often are early stages of tuberculosis, or of pneumonia."

The importance of giving proper care to minor nose, throat and chest ailments, which may be the first stages of pneumonia, was tragically demonstrated in the death of the aviator Floyd Bennett. This courageous man, Dr. Ordway recalled, was ill with an apparently minor respiratory infection, but left his bed and sacrificed his life from pneumonia by going to the aid of the stranded trans-Atlantic fliers. "His tragic fate," Dr. Ordway commented, "not only indicated his great physical and moral courage, but showed the ineffectiveness of present medical treatment in such severe and virulent and advanced pulmonary infection. It calls forcibly to our attention the necessity for better methods of treatment and the great need of education in preventing the development of this dread disease."

Japan's "Profit Boom"

JAPAN'S TRADE BOOM HAS BEEN a "profit boom" at the expense of the Japanese agricultural population and has brought no permanent reward to the industrial working classes, according to the Far Eastern Survey of the Institute of Pacific Relations. Pointing out that it is this fact, rather than the threat to foreign competitors, which is one of the real menaces of the Japanese trade gain, Mr. William L. Holland, research secretary, Institute of Pacific Relations, asserts that "the general indices of wage rates and earnings in Japan are still below the 1929 level and employment has only just reached that level after six years."

The purchasing power and real earnings of Japanese workers have diminished 7 per cent since 1932, thus wiping out the advance gained in real wages during 1931 and 1932. It is held. The evidence shows, however, that even during the depression the Japanese industrial worker fared relatively better than many groups of American industrial employees. For all his low absolute level of earnings, the Japanese worker did not suffer such a catastrophic reduction of income as did the American worker after 1930.

The immediate outlook for the American or European exporter is not comforting. Without a very great expansion of world trade or a radical reversal in Japanese internal policy in favor of higher taxes and wages—neither of which seems likely—there is grave risk that the position of Japan's working classes will deteriorate still further. Such a development, though calamitous for Japan and possibly for world peace, would not necessarily aggravate the present competition from Japanese exports. Such competition is probably destined to continue inevitably with the technical progress of Japanese factories. For the same reason, a reversal of present wage trends, in the direction of raising Japanese workers' purchasing power, would not necessarily mean a prompt slackening of Japanese competition abroad.

Whether the menace of a Japan capturing foreign markets is greater than that of a Japan forced into internal rebellion, or further imperialist aggression, by trade restrictions or other retaliatory measures, is a question to be pondered by the statesmen in Washington, London, Berlin and Moscow.

Keeping It Unprosac

ACCORDING TO THE NEWS RE- ports, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Heacock of Houston, Texas, like their marriages often. They have been wedded four times in the last two years and they have not mixed any divorces with their marriages.

They went through the marriage ceremony again the other day. "And I am going to marry her again six months from now," said the bridegroom. "We believe in honeymoon lots of them, that's all."

It may seem merely ridiculous, until the philosophy behind the Heacock's honeymooning is considered. This couple, it appears, have discovered that a marriage should not be let slip back into an everyday, prosaic affair for too long a stretch at a time. So, they play sweethearts all over again. If it is the only way of achieving the desired end, perhaps it is not such a bad idea. It is one way of keeping married in these centrifugal days.

Notes

Things may not be evil because they perish in daylight. Good resolutions do, also.

Another way to spend an exciting evening is to say what you think of your wife's favorite movie hero.

A recent traffic report has it that most automobile accidents occur to drivers who have never had one. We thought they occurred to those who had had one too many.

Winnipeg has given an answer as to what to do with ex-judges. The people there have sent one to the Legislature, electing him by an overwhelming majority. The victory yesterday of ex-Judge Stubbs was one of the highlights of the provincial election. The judge became a national figure three years ago when he was removed from the County Court because of his unconventional remarks from the bench about the enforcement of the law falling with disproportionate severity on the less-privileged groups of the community. Apparently they all joined to return the compliment.

The rebellion in Spain has been officially described by the government in Madrid as a criminal attack against the republic on a wide scale. It is openly monarchist in its aims. It seems to have been stimulated and set in action by a recent army "purification" carried out with particular thoroughness by General Gomez Morato, its commander-in-chief in Spanish Morocco. On instructions from the central government he removed a large number of officers politically suspect. The blow fell hardest upon the officers of the Foreign Legion. Their work in support of the Asturias revolt in 1934 had earned them the bitter hatred of the workers. The Legion undoubtedly took the lead in the revolt.

VIOLENT LUNCH HOUR

IN FRED'S PLACE, where I eat lunch, there are always a few young Communists and revolutionaries at the lunch counter to add zest to the meal. Nothing, I think, is more inspiring than the courage of the lunch counter anarchist. I like particularly to hear one young intellectual who regales us every day with technical details of the coming war and explains with delight how one big bombing plane can drop enough explosives to destroy Victoria and enough gas to destroy the population. For all this, you see, is certain to hasten the revolution.

His is particularly elated to discover that the "perfect" gas mask which the British Government is now busy distributing to the entire population of the British Isles really won't stop all the gases now available, because they are being improved all the time. He and his young friends fairly bug their sides at the thought of the new German air bases in Heligoland. All this assures the final collapse of our present system in ruins and the development of a new one.

I suppose young men all over the world are hugging their sides with the same expectation. It is very cheering. I am sure that none of these enthusiasts seems to remember that while the existing civilization may very well be destroyed by war during the next few years, this doesn't mean that there particular system will develop in its place. It may be just the opposite. The Communists who are so confident that pure Communism will follow the collapse of pure Capitalism may find sprouting in its stead pure fascism or something worse. There is no assurance that anything better will follow the destruction of our system in violence and bloodshed. It may, but it may not. Chaos is just as likely as Communism; more likely, perhaps.

But the minor prophets are each certain that, once the existing civilization can be shattered in war, which seems inevitable, then their particular refinement, their particular little "ism," their own special brand of monetary reform, social credit or Socialism, will immediately spring forth, fully armed, like the Greek goddess, whom I have forgotten, from the head of Jove; when, as a matter of fact, the only thing certain about war and its aftermath is that the thing which will spring forth will not be anything we know or like anything the minor prophets expect. It will be something entirely new and there is no assurance it will be agreeable.

But more charming still is the assumption of all the minor prophets who look forward to universal war that they are personally bombproof, that gas won't kill them while destroying everyone else, that they will survive to build their new Jerusalem. It might be better to build the new house while still living in the old, but that won't suit the minor prophets of the lunch counter. They must have blood with their luncheon every day.

KANSAS KNIGHT

FOR DRIPPING political ballyhoo, the following dispatch to the Chicago Tribune from Topeka, Kansas, seems to win the prize: "Governor Alf M. Landon prepared himself for the honor that is his by a lonely vigil in his home tonight. With a thousand candles standing outside the old-fashioned executive mansion of Kansas, with batteries of klieg lights and cameras trained upon the front porch, the governor of a typical prairie state locked himself in his library and communed with his soul. There was no radio, no interruption to his privacy. His preparation was like that of the apprentice knight of medieval times, praying over his armor in a candlelit chapel for strength and virtue and understanding."

And no doubt praying with him and communing with their souls by candlelight for strength and virtue and understanding were the Hearst Press, the leading financiers of Wall Street and Al Smith's Liberty League who are Mr. Landon's chief supporters.

BOSSSES

WHAT I have long suspected is confirmed by an expert investigator who has had wide experience working for women bosses in business. He writes a letter to The New Republic explaining just what kind of a boss a woman makes. "They have no sense of humor where the job is concerned and this seriousness is sometimes laughable, but at other times it is exasperating. Then they are noticeably dogmatic and never let one forget that they are in authority. Even in the expression of the most inconsequential opinions they must set you right, which they proceed to do in their best categorical manner. Cross them and you have an enemy for life."

"They never forget! The more autocratic these women actually are, the more do they give a first impression of the democratic spirit and the liberal mind. This is just camouflage and the usual feminine hypocrisy. Get down to cases and you discover a jealous watchfulness of authority in direct ratio to the motivating drive for power that actuates them."

Yet at the present rate of women's progress in business, we shall all be working for them shortly. Then the centuries of labor and bloodshed to achieve a better, kinder world will be destroyed overnight.

COME AND GET IT

IN HOLLYWOOD the other day Director Howard Hawks conducted a few screen tests to find an actor who could play opposite Miss Andrea Leeds in a picture which will be called "Come and Get It." Three actors were tested out as leading men for Miss Leeds and each of them went through tests lasting four hours.

At the end of the tests, a script clerk announced that Miss Leeds had been kissed 467 times in the course of one working day to prepare for a picture called "Come and Get It." The picture bears an appropriate title and I thought the technical facts should be mentioned so that when you next see a realistic kiss in the movies, you will appreciate all the hard work that has gone into it. In Hollywood osculation isn't a pleasure. It's hard work and apparently isn't in violation of the eight-hour-day law.

TECHNICAL

AS I WAS WRITING this column in the calm evening on the porch above the lake, I heard the little boy from next door giving some technical information to his friend from across the bay.

"Of course," said he, "your dog is only a mongrel because he wasn't bred like our dog because our dog cost $4, even when he wasn't any bigger than a kitten, so he's worth a lot more now."

"Yes, but my turtle has a rose painted on its shell," said the young gentleman from across the bay.

"Yes," said the little boy from next door, "but our dog's mother was a real terrier, a Scotchman and his father was a dog."

Swimming

Of all the exercises that make for figure beauty, swimming takes first prize. Experts agree that a daily swim will slenderize the waistline and hips, remove unsightly lumps from the thighs, make ankles, feet and arms look lovelier and younger, and at the same time develop the bust and muscles around the neck. Results of recent surveys are impressive enough to convince anyone that a daily swim really is the answer to all correct proportion problems. The perfect figure is one which is well developed—not too fat and not too thin, of course. It should have soft curves instead of lumps and bumps or ridges and sharp angles.

If you have trouble keeping your hips down to a measurement of which you can be proud, have someone teach you to do a proper Australian crawl. Even though you won't learn to swim in one summer, do the leg and feet part of the crawl regularly and watch your hips get smaller. Hold on to the side of a boat or grasp the edge of a springboard or dock and make your legs work hard.

If you have a flat chest or a scrawny neck, practice the breast stroke for half an hour a day. Inhaling deeply, stretch your arms through the water until they are wide apart. Exhale as you bring them forward. If you do not live near the water, do breast stroke exercises before an open window at home. This takes longer, of course, but eventually you will get results.

Naturally, it is not a good idea to swim too vigorously and get too tired the first few times you go into the water. Take your swimming in a fairly leisurely manner until your body becomes accustomed to proper exercise. Then increase the rapidity of your strokes and the length of time you stay in the water. By September you will be buying clothes at least two sizes smaller. You may weigh the same, but your dimensions will be less.

LISZT DINNER

From a London Correspondent
I attended a "Liszt" dinner, given by the Wine and Food Society in London the other night, at which the whole menu was Hungarian. I could not pronounce the names of the dishes, nor can I spell them, but they were excellent.

Some I shall never forget. One was chicken with potatoes, fresh cream and red paprika; another was pancakes with apricot jam and fresh cream, and a third was strawberries, served in a way known only to Hungarians, with some mysterious sauce. We washed it down with wine, specially imported from the Hungarian State cellars.

M.P.'s Ticket Pools

From a London Correspondent
MEMBERS of Parliament are now running "ticket pools" for seats in the Strangers' Gallery of the House of Commons.

Constituents of the members like nothing better than to be allowed to attend a debate in the House, sitting in the Strangers' Gallery. In consequence, the gallery is full every day, and many disappointed people have to be turned away.

Many members, particularly in the Labor group, have adopted this pooling system, to ensure that the fullest advantage is taken of the meagre allotment of visitors' tickets to the Strangers' Gallery.

The member for a constituency near London receives more requests from his constituents than the man whose constituency is further afield in the provinces, and groups agree to place their tickets in a common "pool," of available seats in the gallery. The Labor "pool" now has an average yield of thirty-five tickets a day. (There are about 100 seats in the gallery.)

Every visitor must enter his or her name before being admitted to the gallery, and he signs an undertaking that "he or she will abstain from making any demonstration."

"Much of the debate is inaudible up in the gallery," an official at the House told me. "Once, I remember, an alderman of a midlands town was a visitor and, forgetting where he was, he suddenly clipped into the debate with 'Are we here to listen to you or merely look at you?'"

"We immediately ejected him, and he was most apologetic."

"The ladies' gallery has the worst reputation for disturbances," the official told me.

"Mr. Isaac Foot tells a story of how, during a suffrage debate, feeling in the ladies' gallery was running high. The then Mrs. Asquith sent a note to the Speaker drawing attention to the noise in the gallery."

THINGS THAT MAY HAPPEN

(From New York Herald Tribune)

Much can happen in a quarter century. It probably is a fair statement that previous civilizations have seen but three truly destructive kinds of catastrophes: Disease, decadence and war.

Disease undoubtedly has been curbed, yet the history of war-time influenza is enough to prove the curb imperfect. Ruin in war is at least as probable as that everybody will die of old age. Greatest of all chances of collapse, if history be a guide, is national or even world-wide decadence.

What, for example, will be the bodily or mental consequences of sudden abandonment of physical exercise by a whole nation whose grandfathers walked to work, did their own chores and rode horses back when they had to travel? It is too soon even to guess in either the optimistic sense or the pessimistic one.

MOTOR-TRAILER CAMPING ON BROADWAY

From a Correspondent

Broadway has gaped this summer at innumerable trailers, hitched to dusty petrol wagons, rolling smoothly down "the Main Stem," turning into a side street and encamping against less congested curbs. There, incredulous pedestrians have watched grimy, perspiring drivers leave the rear compartment and emerge with refreshed appearance, nicely dressed and ready for the Big Town.

For this is the first summer that the Tin Can Tourist has invaded the heart of Manhattan. The influx has not grown large enough yet, however, to strike terror into the hearts of hotel men.

But if the popularity of the trailer continues, hotel men may get anxious. Especially after the other evening's incident in a midtown parking space. Toward dusk, a couple drove through the gate in a two-story building, drawing a homey house on wheels behind them. After settling in, they into a spot, the man stepped out, said he would be back soon. His female companion went into the trailer, pulled the curtains down.

A quarter of an hour later, the parking space attendant whiffed the succulent aroma of corned beef and cabbage and coffee on the fire. They went around to investigate and one eavesdropped through a window of the rolling residence. There, the spy saw the lady of the itinerant house, busy at a small but going stove, fixing dinner for her man and herself. When he came back, they both sat down at a low, comfortable table, and dined heartily on the home-made meal. Overhead, blinked the myriad Times Square lights and the beacons of Radio City shone down. High above was the Rainbow Room, too high for the corned beef and cabbage exhalations to reach and haughtily aloof with its covert, a la carte and table d'hotes.

Letters to the Editor

C.C.F. APPRECIATION

To the Editor:—May I, through your columns, express on behalf of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation a vote of thanks to the many merchants and individuals who assisted in making the picnic for the unemployed a success. We wish to express our sincere appreciation for the generous contributions and co-operation extended to our committee; also, the appreciation of the hundreds of people, representing many other organizations and political parties, who gathered at Willows Park on July 1 for the unemployed picnic.

NIGEL MORGAN,
Secy., Picnic Committee.

HOUSEWIVES OVERLOOKED

To the Editor:—"Housewife" was correct in saying women were excluded from the luncheon held to promote the establishment of a consumer's Co-operative. You might as well exclude fishermen when urging the promoting of a Fisheries Co-operative.

I met a friend that day who had been told by two members of the association which sponsored the luncheon, that they regretted very much that she could not come to it as women were not invited. From inquiries made at the commonwealth store, such an oversight was not with the knowledge or wish of the society, which realizes it is essentially a housewife's business. All credit and honor to those who stand for progressive, helpful movements, but without due thought, much harm can be done instead of good.

MISTAKENLY SIGNED BEER PETITION

To the Editor:—I read a letter in the Saturday Times signed Plebiscite in which he speaks of curtailing the liberty of the tourists, because they could not get beer and wine in restaurants. He urges that we have a plebiscite so that the people of Victoria may give expression to their views on this subject. He also mentions that many had signed their names to that paper some time ago, declaring they wanted beer and wine in restaurants.

The man who came and asked us to sign that paper gave us the impression that it was against having beer and wine in restaurants, and we signed it. I told him if it was for having this beer and wine in restaurants, I would not sign it.

If that is the kind of men that are allowed to canvass the city and deceive people into signing, I say it is a fraud.

ELECTRIC LIGHT RATES

To the Editor:—If the B.C.E. Railway wants to help the average householder, why don't they make a sensible reduction in their light rates, instead of disguising it in such a way that it is no help at all?

All it amounts to at present is that they give or save you something that you give back to them. This in reality is no help at all. If they are really sincere in their desire to help the average householder, let them do away with the minimum amount to be paid and also reduce the rate down to about 15 or 20 kilowatt hours, irrespective of floor space, because I don't see what that has to do with it. We have to pay for the light used anyway, no matter what size of house we may live in.

The present reduction helps very little, they can give you something to pay the higher rates, and those of us that need a little help are still penalized for the first thirty hours because we are unfortunate enough not to be able to pay any more than that to obtain the reduction.

In short, the above thing is a sprat to catch a mackerel, with them getting the benefit anyway.

MRS. H. B. BROWNING,
Washington Avenue.

TIRES AND CUSTOMS EXEMPTION

To the Editor:—Returning through Seattle, recently, from a motor tour I developed tire trouble and purchased a spare tire for safety sake, placing it on the rim at rear of the car. On arrival at the boundary line I was informed by the Canadian Customs officer that I must pay duty on the tire. I protested, it being a case of necessity. He was courteous enough, however, to show me the regulation on the matter, and I paid— not with a smile, though. The point was made is that a person being forced through blowouts, to purchase a tire, is soaked about 50 per cent duty, but a person with money to spare can bring in a tire or tires free of duty, providing he carries them "inside the car" as personal baggage. If this is not a fool regulation, then it savors of class legislation.

Personally, I consider it a matter of obtaining revenue in a subterfuge manner, and certainly not creditable to the makers of such a regulation. The public, who generally try to carry out our laws, should have an opportunity of knowing something more about what they can, or cannot do, in this matter of $100 worth of goods free of duty.

"YOUNG CISSISEZEN" MOVEMENT

To the Editor:—Neil B. Butler's reference, in a recent issue of The Times, to what he considers the airing of their dirty linen by certain members of the C.C.F., draws attention to the much greater discretion exhibited by the Young Citizens' Forum in such matters.

C. S. Thomas, for instance, has never given a satisfactory explanation of the "similarity" between a certain letter of his published in your morning contemporary and an address broadcast by Tom McInnes (he of the "Hole and Corner Front") on March 23 last. Must we assume that he has no better explanation than the one I, in my desire to help a fellow being out of a delicate situation, suggested, viz., telepathy?

Nor—so far as your columns are concerned—has Mr. Thomas made any reply to the allegation of a member of the Provincial Legislature that he was the leader of an attempt to break up a C.C.F. meeting in Victoria. (It is, of course, possible that Mr. Thomas has replied to this accusation elsewhere.)

Neither has Mr. Butler himself replied to an enquiry from me, in your issue of the 19th ultimo, as to the correctness of an allegation that a member of the Young Citizens' Forum at one time acted as correspondent to the Communist newspaper, the B.C. Workers' News.

In addition, no Young "Cissisezen" has made any satisfactory reply to the suggestion that, under the guise of patriotism, their organization is concerned only in preserving the "present system," "right or wrong."

Evidently the Young Citizens' Forum believes that "these dirty little incidents should be kept quiet," to use Mr. Butler's own words. But it is to be hoped that the Young "Cissisezens" dirty linen closet is adequately ventilated, otherwise the accumulation of noxious gases may some day lead to a disastrous explosion. Though of course it is possible that they may undertake the cleaning and disinfecting of their dirty linen: in private, needless to say. Or perhaps they propose to start a poison-gas factory. They have doubtless accumulated a considerable quantity of suitable raw material.

MISSOURIAN.

DESPOUND MOTHER

To the Editor:—The writer's thoughts have been with this mother, when through economic conditions the little lives God sent as blessings can fold one in a cloud of despair at the gloomy outlook created by men on God's sunshiny world—except for the favored few.

To look for help or joy in the charity of today—although there is a great display of it, is futile. Just as the pleasure of a lovely rose is partly spoiled by the accompanying thorn, so is today's charity largely exploitation, with a great strain laid on the donor, and corresponding stress on the helplessness of the recipient.

During the last five years of the so-called depression the greed of those who had carefully looked after themselves, made a great strain laid on the donor, and corresponding stress on the helplessness of the recipient.

Four years ago, "I am having a wonderful time, girls are glad to work for board and room now. I am taking advantage of it."

There, despondent mothers, is your problem in a nutshell—"taking advantage!" The lady took advantage of her servant. Japan left the League to take advantage of the Chinese. Mussolini watched with greedy eyes and had the caring in the League to take advantage of a weaker member: Hitler, watching, left the League to do as he liked in rearmament. But here is a great "If"—if that other great English-speaking race had followed their great ideal instead of breaking it, would we see the spectacle we see in the world today? With the British watchdog—blamed as usual, man's greed has proved itself greater on all sides than the ideal. But only materially greater, for the time being. And compromising politics has been the way. I would say to that mother: "God is great; God is in His Heaven." That far I go with Browning. But is not right with the world. And why? Because God could not make puppet emperors of men. He gave them a great gift of freewill. When man changes that will God-will we shall see things happen. Now all is adverse because the great cry has gone forth from the highest to the lowest, "I am taking advantage." It rings out in the professional, the mechanical, and all the walks where the sons of labor toil. Down them all, rings that great cry. It is in man's hands to change, while an all-pitying Father sees. With infinite patience He waits for man. Despondent mother, God's in His heaven: all will yet be right with world. Taking advantage today is the world. A banner of self for today is unfurled. Fold up that banner, give an eye toward others, and heaven will descend on thee and thy brothers. One with good cause for despondency and a sympathizer.

DIVINE INSPIRATION PROVED

To the Editor:—There has been donated quite recently to the Provincial Reference, the Provincial Travel and the Municipal (Carnegie) Libraries in Victoria, B.C., each: one copy of the Greek and one of the English New Testaments edited by Van Panin of Aldershot, P. O. Box 101, Ont., bringing to light a marvelous numerical design underlying the whole of the Bible from Genesis to Revelation.

Mr. Panin, an octogenarian, is a Russian nihilist converted to Christ, in his youth, and since then devoted to His Word, as a scholar and a mathematician. He discovered over forty years ago there is interwoven in the Bible a most complicated numeric design of threes, sevens, eleens, etc., and their multiples, which it would have taken several hundreds of years for each one of the thirty-three writers of the Bible to work into his own particular books or epistles.

While his discovery is for the Christian an added, although not needed proof of the divine origin of the Bible, it completely undermines all Bible criticism and brings modernism, evolution and atheism toppling to the ground wherever honest thinking men will face the undeniable facts.

Mr. Panin proves that every letter in the original Hebrew and Greek manuscripts is numbered and occupies its own special place in the order of total number of letters in the Bible, the slightest variations of orthography being all God-ordained, whereas the smallest, secretarian, man-made alteration hopelessly destroys the continuity of the numeric design as found in that wonderful Bible composed of sixty-six (no more and no less) books written by thirty-three men over a period of 1,600 years.

This numeric design is not found in any other Hebrew or Greek literature nor in any of the languages under the sun, thus proving the Bible to be unique. Mr. Panin's books are highly commended by leading scholars and scientists and he has never been successfully gainsaid by his critics. God in these last days is speaking with no uncertain sound through the discoveries made by the "pick and spade" of the Archaeologists and through the numeric Bible, giving the skeptics no other alternative between deliberately stating in the face of all the facts to the contrary, on the one hand, that two and two make five or that black is white, which is absurd, and on the other hand, the acknowledgment that God is God and that He is the author of the Bible, G.E.D.

The discovery of the numeric design in the Bible will convince or confound the agnostic who has been asking for scientific facts and mathematically correct proofs about God and His word—and here they are! The pertinent question after all, what think ye of Christ? Whom do men now say is the Son of man am? These heartsearching questions brought now to the heart of every individual should be, with all these facts available: "Thou art the Christ, the Word of God made flesh, the Son of the living God!"

L. J. ECKMAN.

VISITOR LANDS BUTTON FISH

Walter S. Chiene, president of the Oregon Coast Highway Association, heading a yachting party of Northwest business men from Puget Sound on Sunday, landed a twenty-two pound salmon in Saanich Inlet, and was awarded the bronze button.

The party of eleven, including W. H. Clark of Tacoma and G. E. Gaylord of Eugene, Ore., went out to Brentwood with George L. Warren, and each member of the group succeeded in getting a fish.

Mr. Chiene landed his button fish in MacKenzie Bay, using a No. 7 Wender spoon.

After leaving the party, will cruise north along the Vancouver Islands and British Columbia mainland coast.

City Approves Lumber Tender

Selective Logging Will Be Carried Out on Sooke Lake Watershed

The tender of D. P. Garrison to carry out selective logging on the Sooke Lake watershed under the terms of a contract approved by the water board, was approved by the City Council yesterday evening.

The tender was approved after the council had heard a lengthy protest from D. O. Cameron, local lumber man, who claimed the city would lose more than $100,000 on the deal. Accompanying the tender in the water board's report was a letter from H. S. Pringle, city solicitor, enclosing a letter from counsel for the city in which the city was advised to undertake the logging of the area and advised also to refuse the tender.

Alderman Andrew McGavin, chairman of the water board, moved adoption of the report. "This matter had been before the council for about three months," the provincial forestry department was 100 per cent behind it, he said.

The water board had spared no expense in investigating selective logging and the tender of Mr. Garrison in every detail, he said, and he was quite satisfied the city was protected.

There was plenty of time for other interests to submit a tender for the stand, he said. Mr. Cameron had said in his written protest that the city was not getting a good price for the fir logs. This, Alderman McGavin noted, was contrary to his verbal opinion when he appeared before the committee and thought the price of $2.35 per thousand for No. 1 and No. 2 logs, was very good.

In regard to Mr. Cameron's protest about the low price of cedar poles, the water board had inquired from the E. & N. as to what price it got for poles and had been informed that one cent a foot was the standard current price.

"We are here to get as much as we can for this job to protect the city and I will not tolerate any outside interference. If I am not doing what is right then it is up to these men and the people to put me out in December," he said.

Mr. Leeming said the city was making a "common sense" contract. Mr. Cameron had told the committee the fir price was very good and it must be remembered the city was benefited by the selective logging, he said. He did not think Mr. Cameron's protest fair in view of his attitude when before the committee and urged the adoption of the committee's recommendation which had only been made after the most careful consideration.

The council also approved a recommendation that funds from the sale of this timber should be set aside to be used on waterworks projects of expenditures exceeding $10,000.

The motion to adopt the committee's recommendation was passed unanimously.

The fact that the annual fair at the Willows grounds will interfere with moving picture production by Central Films in the Manufacturers' Building is of no indication that the moving picture industry here is about to be shifted to Vancouver, members of the City Council were assured by Alderman T. W. C. Hawkins.

Alderman Hawkins was speaking to a matter introduced by Alderman Ed. Williams who said he had heard the film producers were to be put out of the building during fair week and they would not return. Alderman Williams was strictly against any action of this kind being taken, feeling every effort should be made to have the company remain here.

Alderman Williams wanted to know what the city was doing about it and whether any effort was being made to protect the motion picture company.

Alderman Archie Wells said the agreement with the film company stipulated they should vacate on month during the year for the fair. The B.C. Agricultural Association held the power to put the film company out and Alderman Wells understood the movie men were anxious to stay.

Alderman Walter Loney said when the building was constructed certain sections were leased for the fair to local merchants and unless they would unanimously agree to place their exhibits in another building, the new structure would have to be used.

Alderman Hawkins placed the aldermen's minds at rest however, when he said the Agricultural Association had discussed the issue with Kenneth J. Bishop, president of Central Films, and Mr. Bishop was entirely prepared to live up to the agreement.

As a matter of fact, Alderman Hawkins said, in the moving out and moving back the studio would be widened twenty-eight feet and Mr. Bishop had been anxious to have this done. Arrangements had been made by the Agricultural Association to store the company's equipment in the old automobile building during the fair.

The association was going to discuss the matter again with Mr. Bishop, shortly, he said.

GIVES TALK ON B.C. FINANCE

East Has Been Scared Says Former Finance Minister

"They lambasted me as though I were a boy who had strayed away from home," said J. W. Jones, in describing a luncheon he had with eastern financiers in the Chateau Laurier at Ottawa when he was Finance Minister of British Columbia. "This was the effect that these fantastic spots of new finance had on us in the east," he declared in an address before the Gyro Club at their weekly luncheon yesterday.

Alarming reports which were received by eastern financiers, who were in a "cagey bunch," made them draw in and look for investments nearer home, Mr. Jones claimed. Today conditions were no much better, he said.

The province had not been able to put a public issue on the market since 1933. Though the province had declared that it would not repudiate, and the present Finance Minister had made a great gesture by paying off $5,500,000 out of revenue, the east were still disturbed by reports that a certain political party was lining up with the Communists in Alberta and that another political party had declared as its intention of issuing scrip as soon as it came into power in British Columbia.

Mr. Jones outlined the needs of the province as follows:

1. A budget balancing, economical government.

2. The "squenching" of all calamity howlers.

B.C. HIGHWAY BOARD SOUGHT

Creation of a Highway Commission for British Columbia was favored by a communication from the Cowichan Agricultural Association received at the Chamber of Commerce directors yesterday. The association sought the chamber's endorsement of the resolution.

A similar move last year was endorsed by the Victoria body and the association was advised of this action.

LIMIT BAYS FOR SPORT FISHING

In response to the appeals of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and other community organizations of Vancouver Island, the Department of Marine and Fisheries has set limits for commercial fishing outside Menzies and Duncan Bays, according to word received by the chamber here. At luncheon yesterday directors were advised that the limits had been set at the entrance of each of the bays. Only sport fishing is allowed in the bays.

In connection with this subject, a special committee of the chamber will meet Hon. J. E. McMichael, Minister of fisheries, on his arrival here shortly.

There is on the average one filling station in every mile and a half of surfaced highway in the United States.

Bond Purchase Gets Approval

Esquimalt Will Make $1,728 on Sinking Fund Transaction

Purchase for sinking fund investments of $7,500 worth of municipal bonds at a net cost of $6,786.50 was approved by the Esquimalt Council last night after some debate, Councillors T. Harry Hodgson and Frederick G. Eaton voting contrary.

By purchasing its own issues below par and through the saving in interest the municipality will make a net profit of $1,728 on the transaction. The bonds purchased were of two Esquimalt issues, maturing in 1946 and 1948.

An offer of $3,500 of 5 per cent municipal high school bonds, due 1946, at $6.30, to yield 7 per cent, was accepted from Buckle & Munro. Of these bonds, $500 worth, with a net cost of $431.50, will go to the high school sinking fund, which has $794 to invest for retirement. The remaining $3,000 worth will go to the sewer loan sinking fund, at a net cost of $2,389. There is a total of $3,489 for investment in this fund. An offer of $3,000 of 5 per cent bonds, maturing 1943, was accepted from C. E. Henry & Company at 94, to yield 7.1 per cent. One half of these bonds are subject to being available. The net cost of this group is $3,780. Of the $4,000 worth, $3,000 will go to the bank overdraft sinking fund, and will automatically retire themselves. The remaining $1,000 will go to the sewer loan sinking fund. The bank overdraft fund has $3,587 for investment. The municipality has a total of $7,999 in the sinking funds for investment, and these purchases will absorb $5,780.50. Offers of various municipal and provincial bonds were received from three other companies.

Duncan Girl Wed Last Night

Miss Margaret A.
Kerrone Married to
Mr. Ernest F. Flett

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the Duncan United Church, at 7 o'clock yesterday evening, Rev. W. F. Burns officiating, when Margaret Ann, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kerrone, became the bride of Ernest Frederick Flett, second son of Mrs. Flett and the late Peter Flett, of Maple Bay. The church was beautifully decorated by girl friends of the bride in sweet peas, phlox and stocks, in pastel shades. The service was choral, with P. R. Dobson at the organ, and the junior choir, of which the bride is a member, sang the hymns.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, made a charming picture in a floor-length gown of white satin, studded lace, with sleeves puffed to the elbow, square neck line with Medici collar, buttons to the waist at the back, and a new silhouette tunic, a picture hat in white, and white accessories. She carried a bouquet of white carnations, pink sweet peas, asparagus fern and gypsophila.

Mrs. John Kerrone, sister-in-law of the bride, acted as matron of honor, wearing a gown of pink georgette, with high neck line and accordion pleated sleeves with bands at the wrist, and a pink picture hat. Her bouquet was of pink carnations with touches of blue. Mr. Maurice Flett, brother of the groom, was best man, and Mr. Wallace Flett and Mr. Arnold Flett, brother and cousin of the groom respectively, were the ushers.

After the ceremony a reception to relatives and immediate friends, was held in the United Church Hall, which was daintily decorated for the occasion by friends. Mrs. Joseph Kerrone, the bride's mother, received the guests, wearing a dress of navy blue georgette, white hat and accessories, with corsage bouquet, assisted by Mrs. Peter Flett, mother of the groom, in a dress of brown printed silk and brown hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Flett left by motor for their honeymoon, the bride traveling in a navy blue and white chiffon dress, white coat and accessories, and on their return will live at Lake Cowichan.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Alfred Flett and Mr. Bert Flett, Victoria; Mr. and Mrs. G. Jenks, Miss Shirley Jenks and Mrs. J. Miller, Nanaimo.

Metal Thread In Newest Fabrics

French Couturiers
Using New
Shimmering Moire

By RACHEL GAYMAN
Copyright, 1936, by the Havas Agency

Paris, July 28.—Madame, you may now drape your syph-like figure in a gown of the color popular in the days of Louis XIV.

If you wish to select for your evening gown the new moire known as "irradior," the creation of Couturier Fructus-Daeschler and of the great Lyon silk mills, here are a few tips for your guidance.

The moire "irradior" is woven of the finest natural silk and colored metal threads. This moire follows the design of the rainbow-like the scarf of iris after a spring storm.

Moreover, all-metal thread fabrics are used in combination with natural silk and rayon to form the most beautiful blades, and this year will be very generally used in the making of "empire" gowns.

The metal thread has been made immune to oxidation in tropical and humid countries, where before it deteriorated rapidly.

By chemical treatment the metal has been given the suppleness of ordinary fabric. One no longer runs the risk of being caught in the pleats or of bruising oneself upon donning such a gown.

Some manufacturers suggest a discreet blade on black or blue backgrounds for afternoon wear. Blades for evening wear are also made in plain and fancy designs. Among the most beautiful of the plain ones, made entirely of fine metal and natural silk, one finds such symbolic names as "Fine Blade," "Castor" and "La Ballerina." The last named is a sort of lame of regular weave with a metal chain and rayon cover. Certain fabrics are designed in such a manner that the metal thread appearing on the color background produces a brilliant effect.

This is also the case with "Palmdor," whose background is slightly honeycombed or creponned. The metal thread gives the effect of hoar frost.

St. Ann's Reunion Of Old Pupils Enjoyable

Illuminated Addresses Presented to Sister Mary John Berchmans Yesterday By Alumnae; Programme and Tea

Old Pupils' Day at St. Ann's, observed yesterday with all the traditional hospitality, was further distinguished by the presentation of the illuminated addresses of the alumnae, Miss Mac Murray, in which the love and devotion of her old pupils was feelingly expressed, the address representing the artistic effort of Miss Flora Hamilton Burns, the author; Miss Mae Murray, who was responsible for the lettering, and Mrs. Cicci for the decorations.

Sister Mary Good Shepherd, whose jubilee was celebrated on Sunday at the mother house in Lachine, was also remembered and an address was sent to her.

Sister Superior of St. Ann's was assisted in receiving the many guests by Sister Mary Hilda, Superior of Nainmoo; Sister Mary Bernadine, of Kamloops; Sister Mary Margaret Sacred Heart, a former Superior in Victoria, and the staff of the convent. The alumnae president and executive greeted the guests as they arrived and saw to the registration and introductions.

THE PROGRAMME
The programme in the auditorium included a solo by Mrs. J. C. Cicci, accompanied by Miss Rose McKenna. The annual report of the alumnae of St. Ann's, read by the secretary, Miss Geraldine Murray, gave a detailed review of the many successful activities in the interests of the school, which have been undertaken this year. The series of bridge parties which proved so successful during the winter months, fashion shows, teas, etc., were recalled, and the outstanding event, the visit of His Eminence Cardinal Villeneuve, Archbishop of Quebec, to whom the members of the alumnae were presented.

PRIZE WINNERS
Later in the programme Miss Mae Murray announced the winners of prizes in the series of recent telephone bridge parties as follows: First, Mrs. D. K. Kennedy; Linden Avenue; second, Mrs. O. F. Sander-son, Superior Street (of Miss Rose McKenna's group). Auction, first.

Among the many old pupils to pay their respects to the Sisters of St. Ann yesterday was a pupil of 1864, Mrs. George Appant of New Westminster, who as Julia Hamburger attended St. Ann's Convent on Vies Street from 1864 until 1872. Her name is amongst those placed in the corner stone of the present St. Ann's academy, and she attended the laying of this stone when the Convent Chapel was the Catholic Cathedral of Victoria, and stood on the present site of St. Joseph's Hospital.

Mrs. Appant recalls the happenings of her school life very clearly, and in her reminiscences yesterday proved that the years have changed less in their outlook and interests than the developments in manners and customs would indicate.

Benediction in the convent chapel closed yesterday's festivities, Rev. Father Gaudette officiated, and a special benediction was sung by the Sisters' Choir.

TEA SERVED
Tea was served in the senior recreation room. Mrs. Cicci, Mrs. Ebbes-Cannavan, Miss Frances Briggs and Miss Geraldine Murray presided at the tea tables, and Miss Mae Murray at the tea table in the garden.

Assisting with the serving were the Misses Noreen O'Neill, Anna Eymon, Victoria Ebbes-Cannavan, Cecily Goody, Betty Munnie, Nora Leahy and Mary Hood.

Plans Flight

The possibility that she would attempt a trans-Atlantic flight to her native Sweden was suggested by the inspection of Roosevelt Field L.I., made by the beautiful Baroness Eva von Blitzen - Fincke (above), noted Stockholm aviator. With Kurt Blitzen, Swedish pilot, she examined the airport facilities for takeoff of heavily loaded planes.

Miss Agnes Grant; second, Miss Louise Michaux (of Miss Agnes Nesbitt's group). It was generally regretted that Sister Mary Theodore, Federation Sister, who was to have presented the prizes, was unable to attend yesterday's reunion.

Miss Helen Redgrave, governor of the British Columbia Chapter of the Canadian Catholic Convent Alumnae, spoke on the history, aims and achievements of the federation as a unit throughout Canada, since its foundation at Loretta Convent, Hamilton, in 1931.

The work of the federation, she explained, was carried on through two departments of education and of literature. Through the latter the recommendations of the motion picture bureau of the League of Decency is circulated through all the provinces. Much work is being done in the providing of scholarships for religious teachers wishing to acquire higher qualifications. The Victoria Alumnae has kept in touch with sixteen convents in British Columbia, which involves a great deal of correspondence. Miss Redgrave's address was received with marked appreciation, and the value of her pioneer work in this far-reaching endeavor was acknowledged with applause.

St. Ann's pledge was recited in unison, before leaving the auditorium.

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel"

WEDNESDAY, JULY 29, 1936

Friendly stars rule strongly today, which should be stimulating and successful for both men and women. According to astrology there is extraordinary promise for the next twenty-four hours.

The rule of the stars leads to added power and success for many men who are heads of government affairs. Autocratic and aggressive policies may be expected in many countries.

Women should make the most of every opportunity while this configuration continues. Ure to protest against war and other established or recognized survival of barbarism will be widespread.

This is an auspicious day for love affairs. Girls may be more than usually popular among men of various ages. The stars smile on romance and encourage flattery.

This is a fortunate direction of the stars for beginnings of many sorts and is read as most favorable for projects that interest both men and women.

Outdoor sports are subject to lucky influences. It is a day when fishermen will have cause for rejoicing. Commercial fisheries will benefit.

Underneath a gala spirit, which will distinguish tonight, there may be subtle sense of apprehension. The stars prophesy that the shadow of supreme world events will touch many sensitive persons.

Approach of war, internal revolts as well as foreign, is prognosticated as apparently near on the planet Earth. The decade is to hold amazing historical events.

Persons whose birthdate is in the hour of the sign of Cancer, and who are the subjects of Leo usually get what they want all through life. Many have artistic talent.

Booth Tarkington, writer, was born on this day, 1869. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Hiram Powers, sculptor, 1805, and Eastman Johnson, painter, 1824.

July 31 and August 1—Keep these dates for the Flower Show at the Willows.

Recalls Irish Home Rule Battle

Widow of Colleague Of Parnell Writes Her Memoirs

Canadian Press
Boston, July 28.—Ireland's flair for producing sharp-tongued elderly ladies of charm and humor is apparent in Mrs. Margaret Leamy, widow of Edmund Leamy, who was a member of parliament in the tragic wistful days of Parnell.

"One feels," says an interviewer in the Transcript, after meeting Mrs. Leamy, that Ireland "should place its women in charge of the government. The English would be easily outwitted and would, furthermore, have a thoroughly enjoyable time in their downfall. For the Mrs. Leamys are witty and can do their fighting with epigrams."

"In everyone's life, perhaps, there is one year, or a certain period of time, that influences all the days that follow, and in Mrs. Leamy's life, that year was the twelve months beginning in November, 1890, and ending in October, 1891—the last year of the life of Charles Stewart Parnell."

"So, today, the people and places that can never be distant from her are Committee Room Fifteen in the House of Parliament, Kitty O'Shea, whom Parnell loved even to the point of disaster; a railroad train in Ireland in which Mrs. Leamy was mistaken for Kitty; Tim Healy, Parnell's henchman, the memory of whom Mrs. Leamy almost hates, and finally, "that hypocrite," Gladstone.

"She talked of them the other day in the home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. McWilliams, where she is visiting. Mrs. Leamy is a pory little person, intelligent."

"She loves Ireland and, in spite of Gladstone and Kitty, and numerous other political items, she like England. She is a Roman Catholic, yet looks askance at the 'politically-minded clergymen' of Parnell's day. Most of Ireland's outstanding leaders, she says, were Protestants. She has written about all of these things in her book, 'Parnell's Faithful Few,' recently published."

"With Maurice Leamy, Irish poet, acting as a sort of ambassador, she proceeded to talk affectionately of the old days. Her voice became a little husky when she spoke of her husband, Edmund Leamy, great orator and one of Ireland's distinguished patriots."

"Three years ago, she went to the House of Parliament in London for the first time since the Parnell era. The building was closed. The guides let her in when they heard who she was; told her that she was welcome at any time. She went to Committee Room Fifteen, in which the Irish struggle for Home Rule once was centred; where, Parnell, and Leamy, and all the others worked passionately for a cause that finally met with defeat."

"In latter years, she used to call on T. P. (Tay Pay) O'Connor, famous Irish journalist in London. 'I would go up to his flat,' she said, 'and talk about all the old people we once knew. Parnell, Tim Harrington, and that awful day in the '90s when we heard that Parnell was dead.'"

"Twenty years ago she came to this country, with her three children."

War Widow Pilgrim Dies

Calgary Woman Had Seizure After Visiting War Graves

Canadian Press
London, July 28.—A war widow from Canada who said her last wish was to see her husband's grave in France was dead today, a few hours after fulfilling that wish.

Mrs. Rosina Kemp of Calgary, one of the pilgrims to the unveiling Sunday of the Canadian Vimy Ridge Memorial, told fellow-pilgrims that for twenty years she had longed to see her husband's grave. During the voyage from Canada she said: "When I have seen my husband's grave I shall be prepared to die."

As she returned to the steamship Antonia at Le Havre yesterday after visiting the grave, the emotional experience seemed to have sapped her strength, although she appeared happy. Four hours later she died aboard the Antonia of a heart attack. Mrs. Kemp's body was taken to Liverpool in the liner to await instructions from her next-of-kin, believed to be a brother living in Calgary.

It is the cool temperature—not the morning dew—that makes raspberries picked in early morning keep better than raspberries picked at midday, so government scientists declare.

Women Shave Heroes At Picnic

Associated Press

Seattle, July 28.—Only six men volunteered to risk their chins and throats to razors in a women's shaving contest which featured a Willingford community picnic here last evening.

And when the last mouthful of lather had been spluttered and the last cloud of talcum powder drifted away, an eighteen-year-old high school girl, Louise Nagel, was declared the city champion—having given her friend, Norman W. Porteous, a perfect shave in two minutes flat. Porteous, at seventeen, hadn't many whiskers to start with.

Second best time was the 2 minutes 15 seconds established by Mrs. Estelle McDonald, on her friend, Clarence W. Massart, plumber, but the plentiful scratches and nicks on Massart's chin penalized her into third place behind June Goff, former community beauty contest winner, who did eighteen-year-old Joe Gamble's shaving in 2 minutes 30 seconds. Like Porteous, Gamble's facial foliage was neither luxuriant nor stiff, but he asserted he will attempt to win the annual sophomore beard-growing contest at the University of Washington next fall.

The only husbands who underwent their wives' ministrations were Dr. Frederick M. Lash, former state educational director for the public works administration, who was temporarily lost in a fog of talcum powder, and J. Arvid Anderson, who was visiting here from Moscow, Idaho.

The only other contestants were Elah Culp, twenty, who wielded the brush, safety razor and powder puff on G. J. Keebler, fuel man.

All the men, save Massart, came unscathed through their close shaves.

"Also rans" included Mrs. Frederick W. Lash, who temporarily blinded her husband, former works progress state education director, with a cloud of talcum powder, and Mrs. J. Arvid Anderson, Moscow, Anderson, who is visiting here with his wife, stepped down off the contest rostrum commenting that "over in Moscow (Idaho) such crazy things are Communistic."

Alan Culp scraped and scraped on G. J. Keebler's face—but made little progress because there was no lather in the razor.

Seattle, July 28 (Associated Press).—Seattle's annual summer silly season, inaugurated last evening with women's shaving contest—the women gave the men close shaves in a speed-and-accuracy contest—will have its next innings Sunday when fifteen usually dignified south side Community Club leaders take part in a bareback race on sawyback race horses.

Cathedral A.Y.P.A. To Hold Dance

The members of the Christ Church Cathedral A.Y.P.A. are laying the final plans for their big dance to be held at McMorran's Pavilion, Cordova Bay, on Friday evening, July 31, at 9 o'clock. This is the second of their three flannel dances held every summer. The same popular orchestra which has previously played for a number of these dances, will attend. The usual variety of novelty features have been arranged for by the committee in charge.

For those requiring transportation, a bus will leave the Memorial Hall at 8:30 p.m. and will return there at the conclusion of the dance, 1 a.m.

A wonderful evening is promised and friends of the A.Y.P.A. are cordially invited to attend.

ALIBI HABIT IS SPONTANEOUS

When Timothy comes in blubbering that he got his clothes muddy because Buzzy pushed him, don't listen at all.

His crime consists in blaming the other fellow, not in getting dirty. Perhaps Buzzy did push him, but the chances are that they were playing a game and both forgot the puddle was there.

If Timothy isn't a chronic "squalee," then we can afford to look into things and treat the matter as it deserves. But the little boy or girl who refuses constantly to face the results of his own faults gets to be unbearable.

HABIT QUICKLY ACQUIRED

The habit seems to grow from almost nothing. One day Timothy is a real sport, and then something happens to turn him to alibi-hunting. Maybe a little fear has poked up his head. Maybe he's done something he's been warned about and suddenly finds the need of excuse. Or perhaps without realizing it, his parents have over-punished for something he really couldn't help.

But more than likely his mother has taken his part some time and blamed an incident on another little boy. Suddenly Timothy realized how good it felt to be let off.

After that he didn't need any help. He could do his own accusing. Not only Buzzy, but Pete and Jim and Hector were convenient pegs to hang his conscience on.

Now Timothy comes in whimpering about stones and gates and green apples as well as people. If that old rock hadn't been there he wouldn't have stumbled. If the chair hadn't been out of place he wouldn't have cracked his ankle. If the old tree hadn't dropped its apples he wouldn't have tried one and got a stomach ache.

AFFECTS ADULT LIFE
You can't call such a child a tattletale exactly, because his idea of involving others is not a desire to see them suffer merely to be excused himself. He is simply refusing to acknowledge that he has any responsibility at all, because he likes to excuse himself to himself.

As he grows, the habit will color his whole outlook. Nothing that happens, by any possible chance, will ever be his own fault entirely, so he figures.

It soon passes from "things" and "people" to situations. If he is late it will forever be something beyond his own control that kept him. If he doesn't get along in school, "the teacher is no good," or "he is too busy," "the family won't help him" or "all my books are torn." Any reason but the right one, his own lack of perseverance.

DON'T PERMIT ALIBIS
Once this stage is reached the man in him is pretty well loosed.

Dear knows we fail, and only too often, because of others. But we can't be the infallible people we think we are all of the time. Each of us has a streak of the alibi-er in us. Nevertheless the chronic sufferer is a nuisance to himself and everyone else. And it is the first thing a sharp-eyed world sees. We never fool anybody very long.

This is why it is so necessary to teach very young children not to run in and blame the Buzzies and the Petes for splashing mud. Every car that's wrecked isn't the other fellow's fault. Oh, how we hate to acknowledge that one second we took our eye off the road. It isn't one bit different from Timothy's failure to see the puddle when he and his pal were playing tag.

FARM WOMAN IS INJURED BY BULL

Rock Creek, B.C., July 28.—Mrs. Isaac Fillmore today was suffering from severe wounds, the results of being gored by an angry bull as she was walking through the barnyard of her home.

Mrs. Fillmore was found outside the barnyard fence by her husband. Twenty-two stitches were required to close her wounds.

As Mrs. Fillmore crossed the yard the bull, which had a reputation of being gentle, suddenly attacked her and threw her to the ground. He injured her with his horns and threw her under the fence.

So Much for Love

By NARD JONES

BEGIN HERE TODAY

HELENA DERRICK, youthful head of the women's sportswear department at Helen's store, goes on a week-end party at Crest Mountain Lodge. There she meets handsome PETER HENDERSON. It is a case of love at first sight between them. Peter asks Helen to marry him and she agrees to take over management of the store. JOHN LASSITER, banker, and Courtney are her allies. Lassiter takes Helen to the Sunshine Club ball where Leah Fraser and her mother snub her. Later Lassiter breaks an engagement with Helen, and she thinks this is due to the Fraser's influence.

HELENA WORKS late one night. HARVEY JAMESON, in charge of the hardware department, asks her to see a movie.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XI

Sitting beside Harvey Jameson in the semi-darkness of the movie theatre, Helen could not help thinking how different his attitude was from that of the Frasers and their friends. "He's honest," she thought, "and real." She thought, wholly unconcerned with the story unfolding on the screen. "And, after all, he represents the part of the town which counts. Henderson's Department Store could not exist if it were not for people like Harvey Jameson—plain, sensible people with modest incomes." She paused before a breathless, heartening thought, "And he's for me. The rest of them must be too!"

She was startled from her thoughts as Harvey Jameson said, "Well, how'd you like it?"

"Why," she replied, "to her surprise, the picture was ended. The lights in the little theatre had gone up, and the velvet curtain had swung across the screen to mark the brief intermission before the next showing of the film. "Why, it was awfully good!" But for the life of her she could not have related what the picture had been about.

When they emerged from the motion picture theatre the principal street of the town was almost deserted. A few couples strolled along slowly, pausing every so often to glance into the shop windows.

"I suppose," Harvey Jameson ventured, as if reading her thoughts, "that you find our little town pretty quiet."

"That's to its advantage, isn't it?" Helen said.

"Well," Jameson confessed, "I sort of like it. I've been in the bigger cities, and some of my friends have gone there to live. But I think we have just as much fun and happiness—and maybe on a lot less money."

He looked down at her solicitously. "But we do have taxis. I imagine you're tired after such a long day at the store."

Helen shook her head. "I'm not really. And it's so delightfully cool tonight. Please let's walk to the apartment."

They turned off the main street and were quickly out of the business district altogether. How like a walk in the country it was, Helen thought. Although the parking were full, the streets along which only an occasional automobile trundled were most of the houses were set back from the walk, fronting on lawns that were dark and cool in the evening. "I could be happy here," Helen thought, "if only—well, if only what? She could operate the store successfully, and it was doubtful if even the Frasers could do sufficient damage to harm her or the business. "I may as well face it," she told herself. "What if John Lassiter did hurt me. But I really wasn't his fault. Didn't I tell him last night that he mustn't mix up with me, that he had the bank and his own reputation to think of?"

"You're worried," Harvey Jameson accused suddenly.

"Worried?" repeated Helen. "No, it isn't that. She laughed lightly. "I suppose I'm rather preoccupied with affairs at the store."

"No, I don't mean that." There was an amusing, childish stubbornness in his tone. "The store is going well. Better than it ever did before—that's common knowledge. That isn't the thing that's making you unhappy."

Helen was silent a moment. Should she rebuke him—or should she honestly reveal her gratefulness that he was interested, that somehow he had suspected the truth? "What is making me unhappy, then?" she laughed. "I'm afraid I'm not quite sure myself."

"I suppose you think I'm a fool," he blurted out. "Tonight I debated with myself half an hour, arguing whether I should ask you to see, that is, whether you'd think I was inquisitive—whether you'd think I was trying to make a hit with the boss. Finally I told myself that, since I wanted to take you to the movie, I should ask you and get it over with."

"I think you were perfectly right," Helen told him.

"But there was still another reason I wanted to go to the movie with you," he stammered on. "I—I wanted the chance to tell you that I'm all for you. I know what's happening. That's one trouble about this town. Everybody knows everything that goes on."

Helen's heart warmed. "Thank you, Harvey." At her use of the name she heard his quick intake of breath. She knew then what she would have known sooner had her mind and senses been clear; she knew what every woman knows the moment it happens in a man, Harvey Jameson had fallen in love with her!

Quickly she went on, "I—I hope that your feeling reflects that of everyone who works in the store."

"I'm sure it does," Jameson said. "That is, almost everybody. He walked in silence beside her. Then he said, "Will you be angry if I make a suggestion?"

"Of course not," she said.

"I think you're trusting Roger Barnes too much."

"But just—well, I'm sure he's quite harmless. I know he wasn't very favorable to me at first, and I rather expected trouble. But lately he's been cooperative."

"Are you sure he's not waiting for a chance?" Jameson wanted to know. He felt he should have inherited the store. And if he was, he had a pretty good thing there, all by himself most of the time."

"I'm grateful for your interest," Helen told him pleasantly. "But I'm sure you're being unjust to Mr. Barnes."

"But just—well, I'm sure he's quite harmless. I know he wasn't very favorable to me at first, and I rather expected trouble. But lately he's been cooperative."

"Would you like to see it tonight?" Jameson interrupted. "It's only about five or six blocks from here."

"But I don't see what the warehouse has to do with it," she stopped. Then, seeing his determined scowl, she said, "All right. Let's go there."

Helen was quite breathless when they reached the squat, square concrete building, its long barred windows staring into the night. Jameson grasped her arm roughly in his excitement, leading her there almost at a trot.

He withdrew a ring of keys from his pocket. "The larger stuff from the hardware department—washing machines and electric refrigerators and goods like that—are stored here. So I know what I'm talking about."

"I still don't see what you're getting at," protested Helen impatiently. After all, perhaps Harvey Jameson was a little queer.

With an effort he slid back the heavy metal door. "Come inside," he said shortly. From a rack on the wall he took down a flashlight. "I don't want to attract attention by turning on the lights," Jameson told her. "The elevator's this way. What I want to show you is on the top floor."

Helen found herself wishing Jameson had turned on the lights; or, better yet, that she hadn't agreed to come here. Suppose she had mistaken a mad man for one with a quixotic honesty? But it was too late now to question. In another moment they were jerking upward in the freight elevator. Jameson's flashlight shedding a weird pool of light at their feet.

"Here we are," he said, as the elevator stopped. "I can turn these lights on. All the windows on this floor are boarded up. He turned a switch at first. Then she made out hundreds of tall cases of farm machinery. They were set one atop the other almost to the ceiling. Assembled, they would taken up many times the space of this floor.

"Those," Jameson said, "are grain binders. He looked at her. "It might interest you to know that we sell about six a year."

"Then why all these?" he nodded. "Yeah. That's a hard question to answer. But why didn't Barnes buy this kind when it isn't the type of binder that's used in this locality?"

"You—your mean we can't sell these?"

"Not in a hundred years."

Helen looked back at the crowded warehouse room, her eyes puzzled. "But it was a mistake, why doesn't Barnes send them back?"

"He had to lose the freight it would cost," Jameson snapped. "It's no mistake," Jameson snapped. "I'm going to tell you just what it was. You may get mad and fire me, but I'm going to tell you."

He drew a long breath. "Leah Fraser got Mr. Henderson to okay this order because Mark Sandison represented the company."

"Who's Mark Sandison?"

"Leah Fraser could tell you," Jameson said. "But—well, Mr. Henderson didn't know about that. Anyhow, Sandison wanted to sell this kind of a machine because his commission would be bigger. And Roger Barnes passed the order, and had the stuff stored—all for a nice cut of Sandison's commission. He snapped off the lights. Once again the flashlight made a yellow pool at their feet. Out of the darkness he went on bitterly. "There's a lot more, if you want to hear it."

"That's—well, that's quite enough."

Horton Smith and Byron Nelson Share Lead In Open Golf

THE SPORTS MIRROR

By PETE SALLAWAY

THE REMARKABLE growth of the popularity of baseball, always considered an exclusively American game, is one of the most interesting features of British sport. Although cricket is considered the national game of England, the truth is that it has a very limited following compared with football in the winter. The soccer fan who gets his hour and a half of action in the winter wants a game in the summer that will also give him plenty of action and a decision in one afternoon.

When the first baseball matches in London were played this summer the promoters expected to face a loss until the game could be popularized, and that, they thought, would not be for some time. To their astonishment they met their expenses from the very beginning, attracting average attendances of 4,000 to 5,000. Now the average attendance is 6,000 and a profit is being shown. Those figures are very satisfactory when it is considered that many a third division soccer team does not do any better than that. It is a remarkable achievement for a new and foreign sport. To the Englishman baseball has always been dismissed as "rounders," but now he is beginning to look upon it as an attractive sport.

The atmosphere appeals, particularly to the working class man who is apt to find cricket too slow and formal. There is not the rooting that is found in America, but already some of the fans are beginning to find the game too slow and formal. There is not the rooting that is found in America, but already some of the fans are beginning to find the game too slow and formal. There is not the rooting that is found in America, but already some of the fans are beginning to find the game too slow and formal.

Gates at the White City and Harringay are increasing by 500 a week and there is every indication that the following will be fairly steady, though there is always the chance that the "interim" in the game will prove ephemeral and it will fall to flourish in the land it seems at the moment to be conquering.

An anonymous lover of baseball has promised to spend $7,500 on getting boys interested in the game in England, his method being to buy open spaces to be used as grounds for the game.

It is intended to establish twenty-four teams in London, twelve in Oxfordshire and twelve in Yorkshire. London Major Baseball League players will act as coaches. There will be twelve boys on a side and leagues will be formed in each of the scheduled areas. Free kit will be supplied to the teams.

If this attempt at popularizing the game among schoolboys succeeds it is expected that leagues will be started in other parts of the country also.

At the moment the players in England are Canadian who have provided such attractive displays that they are already heroes to a large army of fans. Soon it is hoped to include native-born Englishmen in big league teams.

U. S. Pros Shoot Sub-par 64's To Top Classy Field

Are Two Strokes Up on Emory Zimmerman in $3,000 Event at Oak Bay

LAWSON LITTLE POSTS PAR 68

Shattering par by four strokes with a pair of 64's, two visiting United States professionals, Horton Smith, Chicago, and Byron Nelson, Ridgewood, N.J., holder of the metropolitan open championship, grabbed off the lead at the end of the first eighteen holes of the $3,000 Victoria open golf tournament at the Victoria Golf Club yesterday.

Although the day was ideal the field of eighty odd had plenty of difficulty with the breeze, that swept the sea-girt course. On the water holes, especially, the stars had trouble getting their pars, with the wind playing havoc with their tee-shots. Although some of the world's finest pros teed off yesterday, only three were able to beat par, while four others tied it.

In third position at the end of the first day's firing for the pot of gold in the second of the "Evergreen Golf Trail" tournaments, was Emory Zimmerman, slender pro from Portland, Ore., two strokes behind the leaders.

Crowding the leaders, four strokes off the pace, were four more United States professionals, J. Geertson, Salt Lake City; Orville White, Chicago; Macdonald Smith, Nashville, Tenn.; and Lawson Little, San Francisco. All had 69's—even par.

Only a stroke behind them were G. Schneider, Ogden, Utah; Ralph Guldahl, St. Louis, and Kenny Black, Vancouver, who won the $5,000 Vancouver open on Saturday in a blaze of glory. Black was low amateur yesterday and reeled off his 69 despite a disastrous eight on the eleventh hole.

On the first nine holes Black was around 30 to whip par by three strokes. He got a par four at the tenth and then lost control of his club as he attempted to use up eight strokes. He pulled himself together and kept even with par for the remainder of the journey.

Six players turned in 70's. They were Gene Kunes, Norristown, Penn.; J. Geertson, Salt Lake City; M. DeLassus, Modesto, Calif.; C. S. Sheppard, Los Angeles; Ted Longwood, Portland; Don Sutherland, Vancouver; and A. Zimmerman, Portland.

In the 71 class were several of the leading players from the United States, including: W. Jelliffe, Hollywood; Jimmy Thomson, Shawnee, Del.; Ray Mangrum, Los Angeles; Zell Eaton, Oklahoma; Neil Christian, Yakima; E. J. Harrison, Arkansas; and Harold Brynjolfsson, Victoria amateur, who was runner-up to Black for the low amateur first day.

TAYLOR LEADS LOCALS Phil Taylor, Oak Bay, led the Victoria pros with a 72. He was out in 35 and back in 37. Taylor was hitting the ball well, but his work on the greens was poor. Joe Pryke, Colwood, got a 76; Freddy Clunk, Gorge Vale, 76, and Freddy Burns, Macaulay Point, 81.

More Funds Are Needed

Faced with the difficulty of making contacts with those willing to contribute toward the fund which is being raised to defray the expenses of Archie McKinnon, Canada's Olympic track and field coach, incurred in his trip to Berlin, the committee in charge of that fund today issued a public appeal to friends of the Victoria coach to leave donations at the Y.M.C.A.

TENNIS HEADS ARE ELECTED

P.N.W. Association Leaders Named; Senior Tourney in Vancouver Next Year

The Pacific Northwest Tennis Association, at its annual meeting yesterday evening, named Vancouver as the venue for next year's senior sectional play and allotted junior sectionals to Seattle.

The circuit will start next year with a tournament in Portland and will be followed by meets in Tacoma, Seattle, Vancouver, Victoria and Duncan.

Joe Livengood, Seattle, was elected successor to Dr. E. W. Boak, Victoria, as president of the association. H. B. Witter, Victoria, was named vice-president and F. J. H. Cardinal, Vancouver, was returned as honorary secretary-treasurer.

Applications for membership from Duncan and the Highland Racquet Club, Portland, were presented and approved at the meeting. In remarks to the meeting, Dr. Boak, who held the office of president for two years, spoke of efforts made by the association to develop junior material during last season. Junior sectionals in Seattle and junior centre play in Vancouver and Victoria had been particularly successful in introducing to tournament ranks a number of young players upon whom the cities would count for major campaigns of the future.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS

—By John Hix

Strange as it seems, Cleveland, Ohio, originally had two "a's" in its name. The city was named in honor of Moses Cleveland, pioneer, legislator and militia brigadier-general, who surveyed and established the first white settlement there.

When the Cleveland Advertiser was founded in 1830, the headline was too long for the width of the newspaper. Its editor thereupon dropped the first "a" and the spelling "Cleveland" was soon generally adopted.

HOMES REGISTER BOXLA VICTORY

Vancouver, July 28.—The cellar-dwelling Homes of the Intercity Box Lacrosse League yesterday evening won their first game in weeks, taking a 15 to 10 victory from the powerful second place North Shore Indians.

Two California Tennis Stars

There are two of California's outstanding doubles players who opened their campaign for the British Columbia men's singles honors with victories yesterday. Neiden, Berkeley, entered the finals of the California state doubles championship this year, while Hyde was half the mixed doubles state championship team in the last California meet.

Milne-Sparling In Fine Victory

Stella Walsh Sets Record

Warsaw, July 28.—Stella Walsh equalled the world records for the 50 and 100 metre dashes yesterday. Miss Walsh—Stanislawa Walsiewicz in Poland—was timed in 6.4 seconds for the 50 metres and 11.6 for the 100.

R. Kinney, Ed. Amark, San Francisco, junior champion; Brian Powers, C. McCarthy, Q. Ryall, Jack Duncan, H. Lando, Colin Milne, Eleanor Young, all of Vancouver.

ESQUIMALT IN BALL VICTORY

Defeat Colbert's Grocery 6 to 0 in First Game of Sectional Play-downs

Playing in the inter-sectional play-downs, Esquimalt Meat Market, C section nine, shut out the D section Colbert's Grocery squad 6 to 0 yesterday evening at Bullen's Park.

The butcher boys took an early lead by sending a pair of runners the distance in the opening frame, and were never really pressed from then on. They added a pair of markers in the fourth, one in the fifth and eighth frames to make up their total. John Watt, ace hurler for Esquimalt, threw good ball and received fine support from his teammates.

Score by innings: Colbert's Grocery.....00000000-0 Esquimalt Meat.....20021001X-6 Batteries—Billsborough and Milliken; J. Watt and Banks.

Painter's Bruins came through with a 4 to 2 verdict over the Navy squad in a Poodle Dog Cafe Cup knockout fixture at Victoria West Park.

Davies, pitching for the Navy, was nicked for a half dozen base knocks, which was two more than the Navy sluggers collected from the offerings of Lloyd Simpson. Davies breezed ten batters.

Score by innings: Navy.....0100000001-2 Painter's Bruins.....11011110X-6 Batteries—Davies and Myles; L. Simpson and Berry.

With the score deadlocked 2 to 2 in the ninth, Victoria Longshoremen gained a lone tally in the tenth to nose out Bell Barbers 3 to 2, after a tight Feden Cup game at Steven's Memorial Park.

Vancouver Tennis Players Enter P.N.W. Sectional Finals With Five-set Win Over Portland Pair; Favorites Advance in Opening Rounds of B.C. Championships

A great five-set victory in the men's sectional doubles, in which Colin Milne and George Sparling, Vancouver, fought off a phenomenal dying rally by Portland's Elwood Cooke and K. Cole, featured yesterday afternoon's play in the Pacific Northwest and British Columbia tennis championship tourney at the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club.

The mainlanders, battling an inspired last ditch stand by the United States pair, went into the Pacific Northwest finals in the team event by virtue of their 1-6, 9-7, 9-7, 3-6, 6-4 victory after the Portlanders had snatched three games from match point in a drive that nearly brought them abreast the Terminal City men in the deciding frame.

The Canadians will face L. Nordstro and Howie Langley in the final tomorrow. SEE-SAW BATTLE

The Portland duo took the first set in the feature, 6-1. Milne and Sparling came back to take the second, 9-7, and then repeated to take the third by the same score. Five service breaks marked the fourth set as the Portlanders won the match 6 to 3.

The Vancouver men sailed into a 4-0 game lead in the fifth and held the margin when each took a service, to make the count 5-1. With match point facing them, Cooke and Cole all but climbed out of the pit with three successive victories to trail 5 to 4. The Vancouver men finally ran out the set on Sparling's service at 6-4.

LONG STRUGGLE In another heart-breaking battle, young E. Alloo, San Francisco, and Jack Hall, Pacific Coast public court champion of Los Angeles, fought through the gathering dusk to three sets in the men's B.C. singles before the match was called on account of darkness. Alloo took the first set, 6-3, and dropped the second, 8-6. He started out well in the third to run up a 3-0 game lead and then fell away as fatigue robbed him of accuracy. The boys bracketed the score at 4-4 and saw-sawed through to 9-9 before the referee halted the struggle.

The match was the only three-set struggle in the men's B.C. singles section in which two Victorians survive. Ross "Bud" Hocking coasted into the third round with two defeat victories, while Commander J. C. I. "Dutchy" Edwards entered the second round the harder way, stroking out a decisive 6-0, 6-1 victory over Reg. Wood of Victoria.

COOKE WINS Elwood Cooke, highly favored Portlander, who holds the Oregon State singles crown, completed a busy day with a walkaway victory over J. Del Amo, Los Angeles.

In all the first round men's singles matches, favorites advanced without difficulty in straight sets. Reg. Corfield, Victoria, bowed to Ben Neiden, San Francisco, 6-0, 6-4, and Dick Bennett, Stanford, eliminated C. S. Collison, another Victorian, 6-3, 6-2. Johnny Murrie, San Francisco, recently crowning Washington State champion, beat S. Armstrong, Stanford, 6-0, 6-1.

Peggy Hocking won easily from C. Cullen, Montreal, 6-1, 6-2 and then beat L. Kitchen, Victoria, in love sets in the first and second rounds of the women's B.C. singles.

Golda Myer Gross, Berkeley, was extended to the limit to beat Helen N. Lay, Victoria, 8-6, 4-6, 7-5, while Dr. Esther Barstow, Los Angeles, ranking Californian, took Gladys McCall, Victoria, with the loss of only two games.

RESULTS Scores for matches played yesterday afternoon follow: B.C. MEN'S SINGLES First Round E. Alloo, San Francisco, defeated A. McBride, Victoria, 6-1, 6-1. J. Hall, Los Angeles, defeated D. Burdon-Murphy, Victoria, 6-1, 6-2. R. Hyde, Pittsburgh, defeated C. Amorette, San Francisco, 6-0, 6-2. G. C. Weesner, Berkeley, defeated A. Rennie, Victoria, 6-2, 6-1. D. Imhoff, Long Beach, defeated J. McVane, Victoria, 6-1, 6-3. M. Carlack, Los Angeles, defeated C. Yolkens, Vancouver, 7-2, 6-0. Dr. H. A. Holt, Pasadena, won by default from P. Harman, San Francisco.

British Tennis Stars Retain Davis Cup For Fourth Year

Fred Perry Beats Jack Crawford In Deciding Game

World's Number One Player Takes Match at Wimbledon 6-2, 6-3, 6-3

QUIST WON TO TIE UP SERIES

Wimbledon, Eng., July 28.—Great Britain retained the Davis Cup for the fourth straight year here today when the great Fred Perry, world's first-ranking player, defeated Jack Crawford, Australian veteran, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3, in the fifth and deciding match. Perry's victory gave the British a 3 to 2 edge in the series.

The Australians went down fighting. Today's final singles matches opened with Adrian Quist, Australian champion, keeping his country in the running by defeating H. W. "Bunny" Austin in four sets in the fourth match, 6-4, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3.

Teaming the match series was a great comeback for the Australians. They dropped both opening singles matches Saturday as Austin defeated Crawford and Perry defeated Quist. Then they took the doubles match Monday, with Quist and Crawford teaming up against Charles Tuckey and Pat Hughes.

A crowd of 15,000 spectators almost filled the great stadium to capacity.

The Big Six

Failure to get at least one of the five hits Schooboy Rowe, of the Tigers, gave the Yankees yesterday, cost Lou Gehrig his place in baseball's Big Six. The Yankee "iron man" lost three points and fell to fourth place in the battle for the American League batting leadership as Ray Radcliff and Luke Appling, the White Sox sluggers, took first and second place with .376 and .374, respectively. Radcliff gained two points with three hits in five at bats, while Appling got two out of five for a gain of one point. Although idle, Earl Averill took undisputed possession of third place. Paul Waner was the only National League member to get in action and although he dropped four points he held to third place in the trio.

The standings (first three in each league), follow:

	O. A. R. H. P. C.
Radcliff, White Sox	38 131 376
Appling, White Sox	37 127 374
Averill, Indians	37 126 373
Medwick, Cardinals	37 126 362
Demaree, Cubs	37 126 355
P. Waner, Pirates	36 120 348

HOME RUN STANDING

Home runs yesterday — Werber, Red Sox; Solters, Browns; Crockett, Yankees; Rowe, Tigers, 1 each. ## PAUL DEAN TO REST UP

St. Louis Pitching Star Will Likely Retire For Remainder of the Season

Boston, July 28.—Baseball's famous "Me and Paul" pitching combination — Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean and Paul (Duffy) Dean—may be broken up for the rest of the National League season.

Paul, younger of the St. Louis Cardinals' twirling brothers, threatened to quit the game until next year after making a dismal showing in an exhibition game at nearby Randolph yesterday evening against a semi-pro nine.

In his first start since July 4, when the Cincinnati Reds blasted him from the mound, Dean was hammered for six hits and four runs in the first four innings.

"I'm no good around here," he said dejectedly. "I've tried my best but there's something wrong with the shoulder. I can't get anything on the ball. The shoulder hurts worse than ever now."

"I believe I may give up the game for a while, go home and forget it, and I think maybe the arm will get all right during the winter," Dean said. He was noticed the pain in his right shoulder shortly after the season opened. Manager Frank Frisch said Paul will leave for St. Louis today to have the shoulder examined by Dr. Robert F. Hyland, club surgeon.

Jazz Players From Victoria Liven Nights In Other Cities

Clarence Holder Is Now One of England's Greatest Dance Players; Four Members of Toronto Orchestra Are From City

From Victoria which tourists find different in its slow and quiet ways have gone some of the high priests of jazz to liven the nights in other cities.

Over the air on the great British Broadcasting system can be heard the silver saxophone of Clarence Holder who learned his music here and played with Len Acres in the Crystal Garden orchestra some years ago.

In Toronto Al Cooper's band keeps the revelries going in some of the smart dance spots and four of the members of his orchestra are Victorians.

Dance music as served up by the orchestras here is claimed to be equal to the best anywhere and this claim is supported by the fact that many of the musicians get calls to other cities.

Clarence Holder, whose brother, Harry Holder, is in the Empress Hotel orchestra, plays in Lew Stone's orchestra at the swanky Cafe de Paris in London beside playing on the air. He is a singer, saxophonist and drummer, and is considered one of the greatest jazz players in England as a nation-wide newspaper recently carried a feature article on him.

Holder played with Len Acres until 1928 when he left Victoria for the east. He was on the Hotel Saskatchewan orchestra for a time and then went to England in search of a job.

Ever since Tommy Gibbs, saxophone player, quit his hometown to join an orchestra in Toronto two and a half years ago, dance bands here have been losing their players intermittently.

Morley Lepage, trumpet player, left about a year ago, while Bert Humphries, saxophonist, who had played on Orient liners before, moved out six months ago. The latest to leave Victoria was Jimmy McKay, who used to slap the bass at the Empress.

All four of them are now on Al Cooper's orchestra in Toronto.

Beside having four Victorians on his seven-piece aggregation, Cooper's orchestra is "in remote control" with Victoria's "Bunk" McEwan, local orchestra leader, makes all the arrangements for the Toronto band.

Beside that McEwan who has got quite a reputation for his orchestras sells some of his arrangements to other eastern orchestras.

Recently C.P.R. selected four Victoria musicians to play on the Shrine excursion to Alaska. They were Reg Wood, Harry Holder, Len Acres and Norman Ianison.

Willows Scene
Of Flower Show

Many Classes in Victoria
Horticultural Society's Annual Event

The Victoria Horticultural Society is completing its arrangements for holding its thirteenth annual summer show at the Willows on Friday and Saturday of this week. Realizing the necessity of good accommodation to all visitors as well as ample space for the necessary exhibits, the society will utilize all floor space in the main building.

An attractive prize list has been issued and classes have been so arranged that anyone interested in a garden might make some entry. This list covers flowers, fruits and vegetables of over 150 classes, included in which are a number for new exhibitors, displays from a number of private gardens beside those from some of the prize-winning gardens in the recent garden competition.

The secretary reports continued application for space for commercial displays, and also says those desirous of securing their accommodation must do so at once. Arrangements are being made for the entertainment of visitors. The W.A. to the society will serve luncheons and teas.

There is expected to be a wealth of bloom this season, and the majority of classes should be well patronized.
Prize lists may be obtained at any retail store or telephone the secretary,
F. F. Boulter, E 8400, who will be pleased to mail one on application.

plications

Nanaimo, July 28.—With 390 applications for four vacancies on the teaching staffs of Nanaimo schools, the Nanaimo School Board sat until after midnight Friday to choose successors to the retiring teachers.
Frank Rouver of this city was appointed French teacher in the High School. Mr. Rouver has been teaching in other parts of the province for several years and attended a leading French University last year on a scholarship.

Miss Olive Green, junior high school physical culture instructor, was promoted to English teacher in the High School, and Beverly Pye of Victoria was appointed teacher of music to succeed Miss N. Rogers.

The vacancy in the Thomas Hodgson School was filled with the appointment of Harry Carstens of Victoria.

With the promotion of Miss Green,
the Board is now calling for applications for her former position, as well as a part-time teacher for the new commercial course.

SCATTERED RAINS
IN U.S. MIDWEST

Chicago, July 28.—Scattered showers brought widespread relief to the heat-harassed United States midwest today.

Rain—too light to break the crop-killing drought in most areas but substantial in others—fell in parts of the lower Missouri, middle Mississippi and Ohio valleys, Colorado, Oklahoma, Nebraska and western South Dakota.

Ohio thunderstorms routed a hot wave as three persons were killed by lightning.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR MISS DIX—Two years ago our son was killed in an automobile accident. Before he died he told us between sobs that he had done something for which he was very sorry. He said that during his senior year in college he fell in love with a young classmate and they were engaged to be married. He lost his job, so they were never married, but a son was born to them who is the very image of my boy. We have not recognized this child whom the young mother had tried very hard to support, but I feel that we should, for does not our blood run in his veins? My husband is very bitter about it. He says "no," positively "no," he will have nothing to do with the child; that our friends will shun us if we acknowledge it, and that it will disgrace us, but finally he has agreed that he will accept your judgment in the matter. What do you think?

Answer—I think the only Christian and generous and humane thing to do is to accept the child and do all that you can to atone to him for his unfortunate birth. Don't leave him to pay alone the price of his parents' sin. Help him by giving him your name and throwing about his shoulders the cloak of your respectability. Save him as far as you can from the cruel fate that makes the lot of the illegitimate child one of the most pathetic on earth. Got knows the poor little fellow will have handicaps enough without having the ostracism of his father's family added to them.

Of course, when parents are confronted with their son's child, who has been born without the law, their first impulse is to lay all the blame upon the mother. They are sure that she is wholly at fault and that she is a vile creature without virtue or honesty who has lured their boy from the straight and narrow path. Sometimes this is true. Often it is not. Very often the child's mother is, in reality, a girl of good principles, one who is pure in heart, but who has been swept away from her moorings on a tidal wave of passion that she lacked the strength to resist.

Such appears to be the case of your son's sweetheart. Evidently she has nobility of soul and character that makes her accept the responsibility for her wrong-doing, or else, like so many other girls in such a desperate plight as she was, she would have deserted her babe at birth, and given it for adoption. But she did not do this. She kept the child, though it was her badge of shame. She bravely shouldered the burden of supporting it, though it held her back at every step. No basely immoral woman does this. No light woman. Only a saddened, sobered girl who stumbled off of the straight and narrow path, but who has climbed back on it through repentance and tears.

I think if you accept this child and his mother you will make not only a great and generous gesture but that you will do the thing that will do more than anything else to bring peace and comfort to your own hearts and to the girl, and you will be paying his scores against society, against the girl, against the child as far as they can be paid in this world. Certainly you can erect no more beautiful and enduring monument to your son's memory than forgiveness and help to his sweetheart and his boy.

As for what people will think of you if you recognize a situation that all know exists, they could only think one thing. That you have been big enough and brave enough and wise enough to do a very Christ-like thing. For when they would have stoned the Magdalene, Christ stooped and wrote in the dust and said: "He that is without sin, let him throw the first stone at her."

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I have a friend who is a good woman, but she has a son she is ruining and who will break her heart later on unless she can be stopped from treating him as she does. She has worshiped him so that he thinks he is the most important person in the world. She has spoiled him until he is so selfish that he thinks every wish must be granted immediately. She manages all of his affairs, follows him on the telephone so she knows his whereabouts every minute, acts as his valet when he dresses, waits up and tucks him in bed. The boy is good-looking, husky, dresses, intelligent, and has an especially nice personality, but he knows how to do no work, can't keep a job, and now that he is facing the world it is rocking under him and he is going to pieces. Is there any way that you can suggest to make his mother realize that she is ruining him? She would be the first to evince horror if she was convinced of it. A FRIEND.

Answer—Though you speak with the tongue of men and of angels, you cannot convince a possessive mother of the fact that she is possessive, or make her realize that by keeping her child tied to her apron string she is doing him the worst possible harm that she can do to him.

Her alibi, in the first place, is that she isn't possessive and, in the second place, that she is doing it for the child's good. When she doesn't let Johnny and Mary play with other children, it is because the other children are rude and rough and a bad influence. When she won't send them off to school, it is because schools are dens of iniquity. When she won't let them go across the street alone, it is because she is afraid they will be run over by automobiles. When she won't let them decide any question for themselves, it is because she has better tastes, knows more about handling money and can judge what is good for them better than they can for themselves. And so on and so on. Any excuse for keeping them under her thumb.

If any one would tell one of these possessive mothers that by keeping her children in a state of perpetual babyhood she was doing a worse thing than if she bound their feet so they couldn't walk, or did something to their brains that turned them into morons, or put some pressure on their bodies that would stunt their growth so they would be dwarfs, she would be horrified. But when a mother deliberately unfits her children for life by making them dependent upon her, by never letting them use their own judgments, by never forcing any responsibility on them, she is committing a crime that is far worse than any physical handicap she could put upon them. For the pigmy can at least get a job in a side-show, but there is no place in the world for Mamma's spoiled darlings.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SUMMER SCHOOL

By HOWARD R. GARIS

"Oh, dear," Baby Bunty sighed one afternoon. "I want to do something to do! Uncle Wiggily, can you think of anything?"

The gentleman rabbit was sitting on a log near the hollow stump bungalow. He smoothed his whiskers, and said slowly:—

"—Something to do? It's odd that you should ask me that question, Baby Bunty. Because for the past two hours that's just what I have been thinking of. Something to do for all the animal children."

"Bunty," Baby Bunty exclaimed joyfully. "Tell me what it is, Uncle Wiggily, quickly! I can hardly wait!"

Uncle Wiggily smiled a peculiar smile. "When I tell you what it is, you may not like it at first," he said. "But I want to tell all the children at once. So will you please get them together in the front yard. Baby Bunty, Jiggie and all the little rabbits, and even Spot, the fire dog. Then I'll tell you."

HAVE THEM IN A JIFFY

"Of course I will!" cried Baby Bunty. "I'll have them here in a jiffy. And he hopped into the house, and then into the back yard, calling: Come here, everybody! Something important is going to happen! Everybody come to the front yard!"

In a short time all the little animals were gathered about Uncle Wiggily. Besides the rabbits, and Spot, and Jiggie, the honey-bear, there were Billy and Bawly No-Tail, the frog brothers, Jackie and Peetle How Wow, Lulu, Alice and Jimmie Wibble-wobble, the duck children, and lots of others who happened to be in the hollow stump bungalow. So you see there was quite a crowd.

"Now," said Uncle Wiggily in a loud voice. "Are you all listening? The animal children replied. 'What's going to happen, Uncle Wiggily? They were all very quiet. 'Well, I have a plan which I hope you will like,' the bunny uncle explained. 'I've been watching you all, and I notice that since it is now almost the middle of summer, you find it harder and harder to keep occupied—that means to keep busy.' he added, so all would understand. 'And I right?'

"You certainly are!" Bunty No-Tail answered. "As for me, I can't think of a single new game to play."

"Exactly," and Uncle Wiggily smiled again. "So here is my plan. But don't say anything until I've explained it. I want to start a summer school."

"Summer school?" the animal children exclaimed, rather disappointed, and Jimmie Wibble-wobble quivered. "You mean we have to study lessons, like geography and arithmetic and spelling?"

"That's just what I don't mean," Uncle Wiggily chuckled. "You won't have to study a thing. This summer school is going to be different. You're going to learn, but you won't have to study. And the things you will learn will be just what you, yourselves, want to know! How's that?"

"That sounds interesting," Spot, the fire dog, said. "What sort of things will Uncle Wiggily teach?"

"That's a fine question," Bunty answered by another question. "Jimmie Bushytail, would you like to know? I mean, is there anything you'd like to have explained about the forest, or the trees, or anything else?"

"Yes, there is," Jimmie replied quickly. "I want to know about the ends of the tree branches. Have been broken off. It looks as though the branches have been cut with knives. How did that happen, Uncle Wiggily?"

"And that's just what I'll explain in the first class of my summer school," Uncle Wiggily promised. "I'll tell you all about it." And he'll tell you, too, tomorrow night, if the lesson doesn't drop too hard so that it bounces. The story will be called Uncle Wiggily's lesson story.

DOWN THE GANGWAY

Party From Mississippi Here
Today—H. F. Alexander
Will Sail South This Evening—California Tourists
Here on British Ship—
Victorians Go to Vancouver—Ss. Prince George
Takes Big List to Alaska

A party of 150 well-known citizens of the State of Mississippi was in Victoria today for an hour, en route to Vancouver and the Canadian Rockies from Seattle.

The party arrived by the Ss. Princess Kathleen and immediately disembarked for a brief sightseeing drive about the city before returning to the same steamer for the trip through the Gulf of Vancouver.

Heading the party is Dennis Murphy, former Governor of Mississippi. He is general chairman. Others on the executive of "The Know Better Train," as the party is known, are Dr. F. J. Jackson, health officer of the state; W. F. Bond, state chairman of the Welfare Administration; and J. C. Holton, state commissioner of agriculture. Special officers of the party, also in Victoria today, are Miss Emma Lee, fourth secretary; Mrs. J. G. Carr, train postmaster; and Rev. O. C. Cooper, chaplain.

The party's slogan is "a goodwill organization, telling the world about Mississippi's opportunities and resources and seeking information about the accomplishments of others."

The party was first organized in 1925 and annually since then the train has toured parts of the United States, Canada and Mexico. It has traveled 75,000 miles, visited 360 cities and towns, come into Canada six times and visited Mexico three times.

With over 300 passengers, the Ss. H. F. Alexander of the Pacific Steamship Lines will sail from the Rithet piers this evening at 10 o'clock for San Francisco and Los Angeles. She will arrive here from Seattle at 8 o'clock.

Booked at the local office for tonight's sailing are Mr. and Mrs. K. Lumbard, Mrs. E. W. Miller, Harold F. Colpitts, Miss M. Wilby, Sister Mary Hilda, Sister Mary Ennata, Mrs. E. Newcomb, Miss Jean Bernard, Mrs. F. H. Swift, Miss Julia Swift, Miss Cecilia Stoen, Miss Hannah Sulzman, Miss G. Temple and Walter Egan.

The Ss. Princess Victoria went to Vancouver today with a party of 487 Victorians on a special excursion trip. They will be back in the harbor about 10 o'clock this evening.

Several California tourists arrived overnight aboard the British motorship Pacific Reporter. They are Miss Grace Dixon, Miss Elsie Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Field, Mrs. Angus Stone and Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Neville.

Ss. Prince George, Capt. H. E. Neden, sailed from Vancouver yesterday evening for northern British Columbia ports and Alaska with another capacity list of passengers.

A party of twenty-five young people from the United States middle-west was aboard the steamer in charge of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Parkhill of Chicago. They left Chicago June 25, traveling overland in their own specially constructed automobiles.

Another party was the family group of Mr. and Mrs. Ward A. Wickwire of Buffalo, New York. They were accompanied by their daughter, two sons and a friend.

Others on the Prince George were Mrs. John F. Cody, with her son George and Miss Marie Laird of Cody, Wyoming. Mrs. Cody is related to the late Col. W. F. "Buffalo Bill" Cody, known throughout the world as one of the most colorful figures in North American history.

Mrs. Robert Anderson, wife of the general counsel of the Florida East Coast Railway of Jacksonville, Florida, was also aboard the Prince George.

Traveling in their private car "Superb," attached to the Canadian National transcontinental yesterday morning, John Jacob Astor III, with Mrs. Astor and a party of friends from New York reached Jasper Park Lodge in the Canadian Rockies, where they are now holidaying on their way to the Pacific Coast. The party will probably come to Victoria in August.
